Destroyer tracks Soviets

Washington (AP) — An American destroyer is tracking four Soviet ships in the Gulf of Mexico off the west coast of Florida, the Pentagon said Thursday.

Officials said the destroyer Bigelow was observing the Soviet fleet, which includes two guided missile destroyers, a guided missile cruiser and a replenishment tanker.

Strikers back on job

Detroit (AP) — Union leaders said Thursday they're confident that 8,000 municipal workers, back on the job after a one-day strike, will ratify a new three-year contract with the city.

The strikers returned to their jobs after the post-midnight agreement. The ratification vote was scheduled to start Thursday night with the tally expected to take several days.

Water emergency declared

Washington (AP) — A water shortage in suburban Maryland worsened Thursday as county officials declared a state of emergency and ordered major businesses and industries to close.

The officials also said non-essential federal, state and local government offices in Prince Georges and Montgomery counties would shut down. Swimming pools will close and outside water sprinkling and car washing will be prohibited.

Hoffa inquiry collapses

(c) New York Times
Washington — The Inquiry into the disappearance of former Teamsters president James R. Hoffa, an investigation that has cost the FBI more than $1 million in the last two years, has collapsed, federal officials close to the case said Thursday.

Hoffa's son, Detroit attorney James P. Hoffa, said Thursday he was "disturbed" and "disappointed" that more isn't being done by the FBI or the Justice Department.

Big cars bigger targets?

Austin, Tex. (AP) — Big cars are not necessarily safer than small cars, says University of Texas researcher P. L. Yu.

Yu recently studied wrecks on Texas highways in 1973 and found that although small cars probably were more badly damaged, larger cars were more likely to become involved in collisions in the first place. Yu said he did not know whether this was because bigger cars take up more room on the roads and provide bigger targets for careless drivers or because drivers of larger cars feel more secure and thus drive with less caution.

Women win back wages

Washington (UPI) — In the first known equal pay ruling for public school teachers, the Labor Department announced Thursday it has won back wages for some 120 Texas women who were paid less than their male colleagues.

Department officials reported the U.S. District Court in Houston has ruled that A and M Consolidated Independent School District in College Station, Tex., violated the law by paying male teachers $300 more per year than women for equal work.

Ice cream views urged

Britain bolsters colony's arms

Belize City, Belize (UPI) — Moving to head off invasion threats from Guatemala, Great Britain flew hundreds of troops, jet fighter planes, and tons of military equipment into this tiny Caribbean colony Thursday.

British Army Public Relations Officer Paul Randrup said a contingent of 16 huge Hercules transport planes and 4 Vickers VC10 jetliners had been dispatched to Belize. Each Hercules can carry 250 soldiers, but the planes were also believed to have military equipment aboard.

In Belize City itself, there was no evidence of the increased military presence, although a number of gun emplacements had been set up around the airport.

The British government said the buildup — which included Harrier jets and a troop carrying frigate — was a response to "statements and military moves in Guatemala" which was reported to have moved much of its 10,000 man army to the frontier.

Belizean farmers and loggers from the western border with Guatemala, frightened by reports Washington peace talks had broken down and that a Guatemalan invasion could come as early as this weekend, were reported fleeing toward the Mexican frontier. Diplomatic sources reported "a run on Mexican visas." The number of requests for visas at the Mexican embassy has doubled to more than 100 a day.

In Guatemala, Undersecretary of Foreign Relations Alfredo Obispo warned that the British buildup could "degenerate into an armed confrontation." Housewives there began hoarding foodstuffs and prices of bread and other basic foods skyrocketed.

Guatemala also denounced the presence of a British troop-carrying frigate off the Belize coast as an act of "aggression," and said the buildup threatened the bilateral talks on the future of Belize now going on in Washington. The talks were reported deadlocked.

Guatemala has claimed for 150 years that

Belize is part of its own territory and has repeatedly threatened to invade the colony if Great Britain grants it full independence. Similar threats were made in 1975, followed by a British military buildup — but not on the proportions of the present one.

In a joint statement issued Thursday by Belize's British Governor Peter Donovan McEntee and Belize Premier George Price's office, the government said:

"Harrier jets (vertical take-off jet fighters) are back in Belize and a frigate in Belize water again. More soldiers are being flown in."

The British government statement called its action "purely defensive."

"The Belize and British governments want to make it quite clear that these are purely defensive measures and do not mean that they are any less determined to seek a peaceful settlement," the statement said.

A Belize radio station reported having heard of increasing troop movements of Guatemalan soldiers near the Belize border, while panicky citizens on both sides were fleeing the frontier area.

Residents of the northern part of the country were telephoning Belize radio stations, asking them to broadcast pleas to their families in the border zones to move north out of the danger area.

U.S. Consul General John Gaff said there was a "general feeling of anxiety" among the population.

"But we're not recommending that anyone leave the country," he said. These people are put through this every few years," he added. There are about 1,000 U.S. citizens living in Belize.

One informed source said there were reports that 20% of the population of San Ignacio, a town of 2,000, were moving away from the frontier toward the Caribbean coast.

"I don't think you could call it an exodus," he said.

Gutted washroom where fire started at Danbury federal prison.

Prisoners were helpless during cell block blaze

Danbury, Conn. (UPI) — Heroism and frustration marked the action of inmates who tried to free prisoners trapped in a locked crowded dormitory cell Thursday during a fire at the federal prison in Danbury.

Some inmates said they could only stand by helplessly and listen to the screams of other prisoners trapped by flames and smoke inside cell block G of the minimum security prison.

The inmates said about 80 prisoners were trapped until the door was opened by a woman security officer against the orders of a superior officer.

The inmates identified Deborah Richardson as the guard who opened a door to the compound where the fire was concentrated and enabled the trapped occupants to flee. She later refused comment when approached in the prison parking lot, saying she had been told not to say anything.

"They have told us not to make any comments. If I talk, I could lose my job," she said. Inmate Bernard Hill said the flames shot out "like a blowtorch" from a washroom area where fire officials said the predawn blaze apparently started.

"We had to try to tear the door off with our hands while they were standing there, burning. We pulled guys out of there you couldn't even recognize. You couldn't tell if they were black or white. You could barely tell they were humans."

At least five inmates died and 62 other persons were injured when a fire of undetermined origin broke out in the cell block. Fire officials said the blaze was a difficult one to fight.

Most of the inmates said the fire started accidentally in some electrical wiring but officials refused to rule out the possibility that it was set.

Danbury Fire Marshal Fred Tomaino said the blaze, which produced heavy and toxic smoke from fiberglass paneling, began at about 1:30 a.m. in a washroom area where inmates kept their work clothes. Asked if the fire was set, Tomaino said: "We believe it was."

George Marchman, an inmate who is a member of a special 10-man fire crew on the prison grounds, said the crew was not permitted to leave another dormitory during the blaze.

"We had to stand there and watch prisoners screaming and burning," he said. Marchman said the prison has a new fire truck that was not used.

John Lastofel, deaf inmate, said prison officials ridiculed him when he filed a fire hazard complaint several days ago because the 40-year-old prison was built to hold 450 persons and it had housed 837.

Norman Carlson, the director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, said at the scene that a board of inquiry would be convened immediately.

Inmate tried suicide, asked for help prior to his death

Lynn Zarachling
Star Staff Writer

Penitentiary inmate Donald Routhier, who hanged himself in his cell early Saturday morning, apparently had tried to commit suicide several days earlier and asked to see a counselor hours before his death.

A note written by Routhier on June 30 saying he had just tried to hang himself was released by Gov. J. James Exon Thursday evening.

Routhier, 21, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., was reportedly the ringleader of four inmates who attempted to break out of the city-county jail two weeks ago. He was transferred to the penal complex and placed in the Adjustment Center following the jailbreak attempt.

In a printed note dated June 30, Routhier said he would like to see a chaplain or "shrink."

The somewhat garbled note read, "I would like to see someone as soon as possible. I can't take it anymore. I just tried to hang myself but the rope cut on the grate and break (sic). If I don't get help real soon I don't know what to say my fall (sic) partners heard me fall and asked me to try this first. My nerves are at the end."

Exon said it has been established that a prison psychologist received Routhier's note through prison channels on Friday afternoon, July 1. But, the psychologist has stated he didn't read the note until he returned to work Tuesday.

The governor said the psychologist was being suspended immediately, pending further investigation, along with the two prison guards who were suspended after Routhier's body was discovered about 9 a.m. Saturday.

Exon said it has not yet been determined when Routhier sent a written request for help or why his request was not handled sooner.

A coroner's report placed the time of death between midnight and 3 a.m. Exon said the guards will be fired unless they can give reasons why they didn't find the body earlier.

Exon said the latest information he has would indicate there may have been a lockdown in routine verification inspections of some cell areas.

He said he has ordered Corrections Director Joseph Vittek to work nearly full time at the penitentiary for at least the next two weeks.

"I am not at all satisfied to date," Exon stated.

He said the latest information about Routhier's suicide was brought to his attention by Vittek as part of the on-going investigation ordered by the governor.

Routhier and two other inmates were sent to the penal complex for security reasons following the attempted June 27 jailbreak in which two hostages were taken.

Earlier, authorities said Routhier was not believed to have suicidal tendencies.

He was being held in the city-county jail awaiting transfer to the penitentiary to serve a three- to five-year term for the armed robbery of two clerks at the Congress Inn on Feb. 5.

Property tax cut included in budget

By Gordon Winters
Star Staff Writer

City property taxes would be cut 3.5% under the 1977-78 budget Mayor Helen Boosalis is recommending to the City Council.

The budget is designed mainly to maintain the current level of city services.

"There has been a common belief that we could continue to expand our services as long as the city expanded," the mayor said in a budget letter to the council.

"But recent years of devastating inflation have demonstrated clearly that this can no longer be the case," she said.

The proposed cut in the tax rate would mean a city mill levy of 26.48, compared to the present 27.44. This means a person who owns a $40,000 home would pay $370.72 in city taxes, compared to this year's $384.16.

The suggested tax cut would come despite a 7.28% increase in the tax-supported portion of the budget to a recommended figure of $28.8 million.

The spending increase will be offset by an increase in the city's tax base, according to the city's fiscal experts.

They are anticipating an 8.02% increase in the assessed valuations of real estate in the city, an increase of 4.2% in the amount of taxes collected on other types of property, such as motor vehicles and a 7.6% increase in income from other sources, primarily the city sales tax.

The portion of the budget which is supported by fees, not taxes, is up 35.27%, to $153,571,897, in the mayor's proposed budget. That portion includes Lincoln General Hospital, the Lincoln Electric System and the water and sewer systems.

The mayor noted the bulk of the increase in that portion of the budget coming from LES.

The mayor said her administration hopes to reduce city departments' energy consumption by 10% at the end of the next fiscal year.

In addition, she suggested that LES continue efforts to establish a rate structure which encourages conservation.

The mayor noted that her budget differs from similar budgets proposed by past mayors because it includes the 6.5% increase in salaries and fringe benefits which have been agreed to by most city employe groups.

There would be no overall increase in the number of city employes under the mayor's budget, but she is recommending that one additional fire fighter be hired to supplement backup crews who fill in during vacations, illnesses and so forth.

Last year the City Council cut the number of fire fighters by 10 in what proved to be one of its most controversial budget decisions.

The mayor's proposed budget now goes to the City Council, which has scheduled twice-weekly meetings over the next month. A public hearing on the budget after the council's changes has tentatively been set for Aug. 9.

Lincoln's youth leader William 'Billy' Wolff dies

Billy Wolff, a leader of Lincoln youth activities whose bicycle shop was a Lincoln landmark for half a century, died Thursday at the age of 81.

William Wolff, better known as Billy, was the retired owner of Wolff Cycle Shop, which was opened in 1919. The shop was at 1831 O St., for more than 50 years.

Active in Lincoln's civic organizations, Wolff was honored several times for his service to the community. He received the Cornhusker Kiwanis Club's Distinguished Service Award in 1967 and the Lincoln Optimist Club's "Friend of the Boy" award in 1969. The Northeast Sertoma Club presented him with the 1975 Service to Mankind Award, for spending more than 80 years helping kids. He received a citation from President Richard Nixon in 1974 for his service to Lincoln.

Wolff was noted for his concern for children and he expressed his dedication through various activities. He first donated prizes for Kid's Day at the State Fair in 1930, and continued organizing the annual event for some 25 years.

He was master of ceremonies for the Elks Lodge 80 annual Christmas party for more than 25 years while he headed Lincoln American Legion Post children's activities for about the same length of time. He served as a Boy Scouts bicycle counselor for some 40 years.

A charter member of the Lincoln Optimist Club, which was started in 1926, Wolff also sponsored bicycle rodeos for Lincoln children.

Wolff is survived by his wife, Regina; stepsons, Ronald Melling of Lansing, Mich. and Robert Melling of Wichita, Kan.; stepdaughters, Mrs. Wanda Dawthin of Lincoln and Mrs. Linda Stalker of Kansas City, Mo.; sisters, Miss Fannie Wolff, Mrs. Jean Gordon, Mrs. Rose Nouichoff, all of Lincoln and Mrs. Sally Hassel of Albuquerque, N.M. and 11 grandchildren.

Plan for paper pickup eyed

A plan for free citywide curbside pickup of recyclable paper was unveiled by a Lincoln businessman Thursday night.

Earl Harris, manager of Cyclapaper and Can Co., outlined his plan before the Mayor's Energy Action Committee.

If Harris' plans are successful, the newspaper you're reading could be used to help insulate homes and collection donations could help feed the elderly.

The newspaper would be recycled into insulation, and for each ton collected, $2 would be donated to the Tabitha Home's Meals on Wheels program, Harris said.

The newsprint, which citizens would be required to bundle and leave at curbside, would be collected once a month.

Harris said he hopes to collect about 10 tons of paper a day, and that 20% of Lincolinites must participate in order for the project to stay in operation.

If the newspaper collection proves successful, Harris said, the company may try collecting cans for recycling.

But before any citywide collection begins, Harris said, the company will test its plan in two sections of town to gauge how responsive Lincolinites will

Confined bomb radius argued on both sides

Washington (AP) — Both supporters and critics of the neutron bomb cite the bomb's potential for confining damage in their arguments over the weapon, which has been tested underground Nevada.

The weapon, known during early development stages in the 1960s as a "death ray" bomb, is designed to kill people with massive doses of radiation while leaving most surrounding buildings intact.

The Defense Department says the primary reason it wants the neutron bomb is "because of the improved troop safety that will be afforded to U.S. and allied soldiers in the battlefield area."

All warheads and bombs are lethal to people, the Pentagon argues, and a major problem in modern war is how to confine destruction to the immediate target area and avoid damage to urban centers.

The area exposed to fire, blast and fallout from a neutron bomb would be less than one-tenth of that from a conventional nuclear bomb while the radiation would double, the Pentagon says.

Pentagon spokesmen also argue that the neutron warhead would be a greater deterrent to Soviet invaders in Europe than current tactical nuclear weapons.

Lance missiles with a 75-mile range and equipped with conventional nuclear warheads are now stored in Europe. "The Soviets know we may be reluctant to use them because of the devastation" to allied territory, a spokesman said.

The neutron bomb would increase deterrence, the spokesman said, "because the Soviets know our use of it is safe to our allies and us and it decreases their chances of surviving an assault."

"By confining these effects to small areas, the military effectiveness is maintained while minimizing the unwarranted hazard to nearby populations, to U.S. and allied forces and greatly reducing the destruction around the immediate target area," a Pentagon statement says.

Soviets blast U.S. right-wing

Moscow (AP) — The Soviet news agency Tass reported America's first tests of the neutron bomb with the comment Thursday that "prospects for a new arms race have brought new liveliness to ultra-right organizations in the U.S.A."

Tass said tests of the new bomb and plans for American development of the mobile MX missile were bringing delight to supporters of the military-industrial complex and to right-wing American political figures.

The Soviet Union has described development of such new weapons systems as the neutron bomb, the cruise missile, the Trident sub-

Program cites diseased crops

Washington (UPI) — Agriculture Department officials have launched what they eventually hope to make a nationwide "early warning" system to tell farmers and scientists about new diseases in major food crops.

Officials said the system was launched in 20 Midwest states where the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service will put prime emphasis on detecting new diseases of corn, soybeans, wheat and other small grains.

The 10 states are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio and South Dakota.

Member of the National Association of Publishers

Sen. John Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, says the neutron bomb "has the radius of a pistol shot rather than the radius of a shotgun." He calls the weapon "the best news I've had in years."

The Pentagon's argument that the neutron bomb's confined damage potential also is being used by critics.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., says the fact that they limit damage "invites their use." The critics say a president might be more likely to use the neutron bomb in a crisis because of the restricted blast power.

And, argues Hatfield, "it is a mistake to introduce into our arsenal new weapons which would blur the distinctions between conventional and nuclear weapons."

He says the United States cannot assume that the Soviet Union would not retaliate against the neutron bomb with conventional nuclear weapons.

The Pentagon says the weapons would not introduce nuclear weaponry to Europe because it's already there. And defense officials argue that the neutron weapon would not be used readily because the U.S. policy is not to use nuclear weapons "except in times of desperation."

Defense spokesmen decline to talk about the size of weapon envisioned.

The Soviet newspaper Pravda has denounced the warhead as "practically a chemical-warfare weapon."

Pentagon spokesmen declined to give details about testing of the neutron bomb beneath the Nevada desert.

The U.S. Energy Research and Development Agency, which is developing the weapon, said Thursday that tests of the weapon are continuing.

President Carter has not decided whether to approve the new weapon but has asked Congress to approve funds for it to give him "maximum flexibility" in making his decision.

Before going on a Fourth of July recess, the Senate rejected a proposal to delete funds for the weapons. The debate will resume July 11.

marine and the Mark 12a computerized missile warhead as dangerous American steps to "prepare the soil for a new spiral in the arms race."

Soviet commentator Yuri Kornilov wrote Thursday that instead of seeking a satisfactory settlement of the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms talks, "the American administration is doing everything possible to complicate these negotiations."

"This round in the race for illusive military superiority," he said, "is an extremely dangerous venture which jeopardizes the cause of deepening and strengthening detente."

staged an all-night vigil at the Pentagon before the protest.

A spokeswoman for the federal Magistrate's office identified the four persons arrested as Jack Duggan of Omaha; Roger Miller of Toledo, Ohio; Ladon Sheats of Baltimore, Md.; and Annamarie Hurdick of Newport, Me.

The four were part of a group of 17 protesting the introduction of the bomb, which is designed to give off high levels of radiation without causing widespread blast damage.

Four coal miners dead after blast in Virginia

St. Charles, Va. (AP) — Four coal miners were reported dead by rescuers who reached them Thursday night, about 12 hours after they were trapped more than a mile underground following an apparent explosion.

Fourteen other miners had escaped after the 10 a.m. accident in a P&P Mine Co. shaft.

Federal and state mine inspectors and spokesmen for the mine company said they were unsure whether the accident was an explosion or a cave-in. A spokesman for the Federal Mine Enforcement and Safety Administration said the rescue teams were bringing the bodies to the surface and clearing the mine of deadly methane gas.

The trapped miners were identified as Harold Johnson, 33, and Harold Wells, 40, both of St. Charles; Bill Perkins, 31, of Jonesville; and Danny Tester, 29, of Woodway.

MESA officials said occasional pockets of gas had been found in the mine previously but they said ventilation shafts had always taken care of the problem.

"I would say that if the explosion didn't get them, the carbon monoxide did," Chad Blevins, a 42-year-old miner who was working inside the mine about 1,500 yards from where the blast occurred, said during rescue operations.

Randy Fisher, another miner in the pit working a 38-inch seam of coal, said he remained in the mine for as long as he could after the blast occurred shortly after 10 a.m. "I could have come out any time, but I stayed in there," he said.

"It's too close to me, I don't want to talk about it."

Blevins said the four men had gone into a section of the shaft beyond the rest of the workers to remove two digging machines and some rope that were left over from mining operations.

He said the miners had not been digging coal in the section beyond the point where the blast occurred.

The 14 miners who were able to flee to safety were working on a new face of coal a little more than a mile inside the mine entrance.

MESA officials said that as far as they could remember the mine had not been cited for any violation of safety regulations.

Babies, bettors and burglars were involved in a number of coincidences — some lucky and some not so lucky — throughout the nation Thursday, the 7th day of the 7th month of the 77th year of the century.

Hospitals in Kansas City, Mo., and Riverhead, N.Y., reported the births of babies weighing seven pounds, seven ounces.

"We nearly freaked out," said Mrs. John Allen Howerton after St. Luke's Hospital officials told her that her newborn son, Jonathan Adam, tipped the scales at 7-7.

"It's got to be lucky," she said from the Kansas City hospital. "It's just got to be with that combination."

And in Riverhead, newborn Scott Michael Zaykowski not only made his debut on the seventh day of the seventh month, Central Suffolk Hospital officials said he arrived at 7:07 a.m.

In Ironwood, Mich., Emma Pelto celebrated her 77th birthday, noting that she was born the seventh of seven children in her native Finland.

And Malina Sue Kelley of Barre, Vt., turned 7 on Thursday. Malina Sue, who weighed seven pounds, seven ounces when she was born, celebrated at her home at 77 Franklin Street.

Stock market investors who heeded the advice of Robert Ball, director of the Astrological Metaphysical Research Center in Coral Gables, Fla., weren't disappointed. Ball said the stock market never failed to rise on July 7th.

The Dow Jones industrial closing average Thursday was 909.51, up 1.78.

It wasn't such a lucky day, however, for Don Entwistle in New Richland, Minn. Burglars broke into his drugstore through a plate glass window on Main Street, making off with pills and liquid painkillers. It was the seventh time Entwistle's pharmacy has been burglarized.

At Rockingham Park in Salem, N.H., folks who bet on Lightning Lady, the No. 7 horse in the seventh race, were out of luck. But those who put a $2 bet on Sail On Lisa, the winner, won $7.

Would-be players of the Maryland lottery's daily Numbers Game were nipped in the bud when they tried to place bets on 777 Thursday afternoon. Lottery officials stopped taking bets on the combination about 1:30 p.m. after a total of $12,000 was wagered on that number.

At 500-to-1 odds, a spokesman said if the randomly drawn number was 777, the state would have to pay out $6 million, its total lottery cash prize reserve.

The spokesman said lottery officials have stopped the betting on extremely popular numbers before. In fact, when they did so Thursday it was, naturally, the seventh time in the game's history.

Dole supports Begin

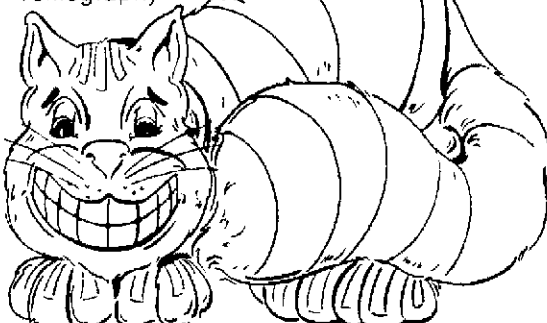

Jerusalem (UPI) — Sen. Robert Dole, the defeated 1976 vice presidential candidate, Thursday blasted President Carter's call for a Palestinian homeland as part of a Middle East settlement and called Palestinian leaders "bandits."

Dole, in a speech to the 80th convention of the Zionist Organization of America, gave full support to the new right-wing government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin and supported Begin's contention that the West Bank of the Jordan was a "liberated territory."

"I fully concur with Prime Minister Begin's characterization of the West Bank as 'liberated territory' and not 'occupied territory,'" Dole said. "If Israel wishes to relinquish all or part of the West Bank by negotiation, that is her right. It is not her obligation."

Contraceptive
method tested

Salt Lake City (AP) — Pharmacists at the University of Utah are experimenting with a new method of delivering contraceptives into the body in continuous low doses over periods of many months.

The method involves chemically binding the drug to a type of polymer which can break down within the body. Polymers are synthetic and biodegradable compounds, usually with a complex chemical structure.

The combined substance would be implanted or injected under the skin. As the polymer breaks down over a period of months, the drug would slowly be released into the body.

Dr. Robert V. Petersen, chairman of the university Department of Applied Pharmaceutical Sciences, said researchers will first work with contraceptives and later work with other drugs such as anticancer drugs and those used to control high blood pressure.

"Anticancer drugs bound to polymers could be implanted at the site of a solid tumor to deliver the proper dose to the target site continuously," he said.

Another drug delivery system now on the market involves capsules or membranes which release drugs over time. But Petersen said that method has disadvantages because the device must be removed after six months or a year, when all the drug has been released.

"And many of the polymers being considered for use in these systems are not compatible with the body over long periods," Petersen said. "The body tends to 'wall it off' or encapsulate it with material that hampers the release of the drug."

He said university researchers will be working with polymers based on synthetic amino acids, the building blocks of protein. Synthetic amino acids are so closely related to body materials that researchers hope to resolve the "walling off" problem, he said. "And since the material degrades over time it will never have to be removed from the body."

The polymers will be tested under simulated conditions and in animal studies to determine how rapidly they release the drugs and how compatible they are with body tissues, he said.

Artery pathway
for missing bullet

Virginia Beach, Va. (AP) — Surgeons, at first baffled when they couldn't find a bullet that had pierced a man's heart, have removed it after discovering it had traveled through an artery to his groin.

"It is not unusual for a man to have a bullet in his heart, but for the bullet to travel through an artery is something neither I nor most of my colleagues have encountered," Dr. Mansur Rahnama, a surgeon at Bayside Hospital, said Wednesday.

He headed the surgical team that operated on Robert E. Cuthriell III, 25, of Chesapeake, who was shot during a July 4 picnic after he refused to cook some meat for two strangers.

The bullet had pierced the right lung and lodged in the lower left chamber of his heart before traveling through the artery that carries blood to the legs, Rahnama said.

Doctors removed a damaged portion of lung and closed the hole in the heart, but initial X rays failed to locate the bullet.

Eventually, it was discovered in Cuthriell's pelvis and removed.

Hospital officials refused to disclose Cuthriell's condition Thursday, but Rahnama said he should recover.

Police said Cuthriell and his family were cooking food on a grill in a crowded park on the holiday when two men walked up and asked him to cook some meat for them. When he refused, the men cursed, threw meat at Mrs. Cuthriell and walked away, police said.

Later, a man identified by witnesses as one who had argued with Cuthriell came back and shot him with a small caliber handgun, police said.

Arcelious Valentine, 19, of Virginia Beach, has been arrested and charged with the shooting.

Djibouti gets backing for admission to U.N.

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — The Security Council unanimously recommended the world's newest nation, the Republic of Djibouti, for United Nations membership Thursday.

Djibouti would be the 166th member of the United Nations. Admission requires the recommendation of the council and a two-thirds vote in the General Assembly, which convenes Sept. 20.

Djibouti, once called French Somaliland and later renamed the Territory of Afars and Issas, became independent June 27 after 115 years of French rule.

The new country, mostly desert, is on the African side of the mouth of the Red Sea between Ethiopia and Somalia.

Gasohol controversy shows need for objective look

Chances are, a lot of heat and not much light will be generated at a legislative hearing next week on the production of grain alcohol to blend with gasoline.

Controversy over the resulting motor fuel blend, gasohol, has increased recently. State Sen. Loran Schmit, chairman of the Legislature's Agriculture and Environment Committee which will hold the July 14 hearing, points to conflicting opinions from experts and an alleged shift in position by Gov. Jim Exon as reasons the hearing should be held.

The chance for more light and less heat depend on the willingness of all concerned to take another, objective look at the issue.

Schmit said he is "particularly concerned that Gov. J. James Exon appears to have done a 180-degree turn and he is no longer supporting the grain alcohol production program."

That is not an accurate appraisal of the governor's position, so far as we can tell.

First, it must be said that this is a controversial subject and an emotional one, especially for grain producers who see expanded market potential in blending grain alcohol with gasoline. Those grain producers behind the gasohol program heart and soul can't be blamed for their desire to see it get off the ground.

Second, enthusiasm for developing a gasohol market should not be allowed to obscure the need for determining whether or not it is feasible.

Thus far there are very serious reservations on the part of many experts about proposals to build grain alcohol plants. Will the product (gasohol) extend the nation's fuel supply and encourage a rise in farm prices? These questions are being debated among experts and producers and there are sharp differences of opinion. Some say it is feasible and some say not. Doubters point to the much higher cost of producing grain alcohol as compared to the cost of refining gasoline.

Exon and others favor an independent survey, which does not depend on data supplied by gasohol proponents, looking at production costs and marketing and profit potentials.

This does not appear to indicate flat-out opposition to the production of grain alcohol.

An independent look is apparently needed, an objective look at the feasibility of the gasohol program.

If the figures show the project is feasible, all the more support will accrue to it. If it is a pie-in-the-sky scheme, it should be exposed as such.

Buckets of bucks

Washington — One way to get a lot of mail is to contribute to conservative causes. The acknowledged star of the direct-mail business, Richard Viguerie, has been raising buckets of money for right-wing causes, committees and candidates (including George Wallace) over the last few years, and there is a legend growing among conservative politicians about the fertility of the so-called "Reagan list" derived from the 1976 presidential campaign. If you are on that one, you can count on getting at least two letters a month.

The Ronald Reagan campaign raised a remarkable $9 million last year, most of it — $7 to $8 million — from direct mail. And the list that was left, which also included the names of those who responded to his television appeals, has about 180,000 names on it. Under an agreement reached after Reagan lost the Republican presidential nomination, his new organization, "Citizens for the Republic," has the right to use the list exclusively six times a year and his direct-mail operator, Bruce Eberle, is entitled to sell it 18 times in exchange for keeping it up to date.

Sen. Floyd Haskell of Colorado has always been on the list of endangered species among Democrats, if only because Colorado often votes so heavily Republican and because he won so narrowly, with 49.4% of the vote, in his first election. But his position entering the 1978 campaign has been further complicated by an article in the July issue of Harper's magazine that accuses him of political shooting from the hip in the controversy last year about whether Howard Callaway, then President Ford's campaign manager, had improperly used his post as secretary of the Army to help a ski resort, Crested Butte, in which he had an interest. The article's title makes clear its point: "The Persecution and Character Assassination of Howard (Bo) Callaway as Performed by Inmates of the U.S. Senate under the Auspices of the Democratic Party."

How it is in Europe . . .

Anthony Lewis

Brussels — In a dangerous world, where our vision of freedom is often frustrated, many of us in the West have paid scant attention to some genuine good news in Europe. In the last few years three countries have shaken off authoritarian dictatorships. Greece, Portugal and Spain now have elected democratic governments and live under the rule of law.

That these relatively poor countries of southern Europe overthrew entrenched totalitarian systems of the right, and did so without swinging over to the intolerance of the left, is a remarkable fact. It refutes the Spenglerian gloom of those who say that, among the underprivileged, democracy cannot successfully compete with the easy claims of communism.

The events in Greece and Portugal and Spain also make a particular political point. They underline the significance of that nowadays much-abused creature, the European Community. For I think the moves away from totalitarianism could not have occurred without the influence of the Community.

The existence of a prospering Community of nine democratic countries next door in Europe acted as a magnet for the Greeks and Portuguese and Spaniards. They wanted to be part of it, and they knew that was not possible so long as their own institutions were not free.

The Community made clear that its attitude toward its neighbors in Western Europe was affected by violations of human decencies. It was cold to the colonels' Greece, and that turned out to matter: People who wanted to be considered part of the West did not like being regarded as pariahs.

The role of the European Community in the political transition of the three countries was the more important because the United States was so unhelpful at the time. The man who then made American foreign policy preferred dealing with dictatorships abroad; he found democracies so unpredictable, so untidy. He was unable to see past the colonels in Greece, for example — a blindness that helped bring on disaster in Cyprus.

The contrast in American and European attitudes was dramatized in Portugal. When the dictatorship there was overthrown, Kissinger wrung his hands and said communism was bound to triumph. The Europeans, instead of crying that the sky was falling in, gave crucial assistance to the democratic forces and helped bring Portugal through the narrows.

All this shows a curious truth about the Community. Everyone knows that it is an economic success, with trade booming and all internal tariffs ended this month, but that its hopes for internal development toward political unity have withered. Yet externally, the Community's political significance is considerable.

One area in which it may have a critical part to play is in shaping and controlling Eurocommunism. As Communist parties move toward a share of power in Italy and France, the Community can provide essential moral and psychological support for troubled domestic institutions in maintaining democracy. In effect, it anchors the democratic premise in Western Europe.

In Eastern Europe, too, this is a time of flux. Reports here suggest that problems may be most acute in Poland, where the need to raise prices paid to farmers is once again coming into conflict with workers' resistance to food price rises. The Community and its members, which have more intimate links across the Curtain than the United States, have an essential role in the delicate business of encouraging better conditions in the East without raising expectation dangerously high.

When the Community does act as an entity in foreign affairs — the latest example was last week's statement calling for a Palestinian homeland — it was far more impact than its members do alone. But joint action is difficult. National jealousies have not disappeared, nor has an effective political structure been built. Co-operation is inhibited by domestic political weakness, and especially the lingering anti-Community politics in Britain.

A challenge that could be decisive for the Community's political future is now at hand. Greece and Portugal have applied for membership, and Spain is expected to soon. To expand from nine to 12 members would complicate the already awkward Community structure. Poverty and farm surpluses in the three countries raise great difficulties. But much depends on overcoming those problems — and not for Europe alone.

The democratic role of the Community is vital to the West as a whole. That has to be understood by the United States especially. And there is a feeling here, a happy one, that President Carter and Secretary of State Vance are sensitive to the particular opportunities and problems of the European Community.

Fireworks over fireworks

Mayor Boosalis doubtless will gather considerable public support for her position that fireworks should be the object of a statewide ban. But there also may be a sizeable segment of the community which disagrees with the idea.

"Although there is the question of taking the fun out of the Fourth, I think the safety of the citizens should be uppermost," the mayor said Wednesday.

She said that 31 fires were reported in Lincoln on July 4 which were directly attributable to fireworks and between June 28 and July 4, 121 fires were reported which were directly attributable to fireworks. Noting that a city ban would not be effective because sellers could set up outside the city limits, Mrs. Boosalis said she will ask for City Council support for a lobbying effort in behalf of legislation at the state level which would ban all but public fireworks displays.

We can appreciate the mayor's concern for safety. The number of fires this year, abetted as much by dryness and wind as carelessness, is a hostile witness as fireworks are tried in the court of public opinion. We think that perhaps a greater aggravation, although not having nearly the potential for danger, is the noise factor. The pop-pop-pop drives a lot of people crazy.

But we oppose an outright ban on the citizen's enjoyment of legal fireworks. Fireworks have been an integral part of man's celebrations for untold generations, and have been part and parcel of our celebration of American independence since the first Fourth.

What would be wrong, for example, for further curtailing the time fireworks could be sold and used, without banning them outright?

Old-time music best

Lincoln, Neb.
I thought I would take advantage of the long weekend to contemplate retirement, but did the same thing I usually do. I was using energy to listen to the radio and what the announcers call "music." Even tuning in a different local station didn't seem to help. It was all the same. The louder one can yell and holler, in or out of tune, with background accompaniment of the pounding on drums and more out-of-tune yelling, the better the "music."

I asked myself what had become of the good old-time music, with the singer at least able to carry the main tune without the help of a tub. The radio music of yesteryear was certainly more relaxing and entertaining with pieces like "Peggy O'Neill," "Daybreak," "Sweet and Lovely," "At Sundown," "Canadian Sunset," "Who's Got De Ding Dong?" and many others. True, the titles sound corny in some cases, but at least one could understand the lyrics and hear them.

Also, I noted that almost all national news has to have a foreign correspondent giving his report. The commentator gives us the details, then said, "And here is Whozit giving his report on Whatzit from Wherezit."

My final conclusion about retirement was not to plan on sitting around listening to the radio. A person would be better off mentally to go about his retirement chores and hobbies whistling the old-time tunes and going back in memory to yesteryear's music, because I don't think our radios today could stand the slower beat of real good music.

Did it ever occur to them that these delegates represent the views of the majority of women of Nebraska who had the opportunity for the first time to voice their feelings and views, no longer allowing the loud, vocal and organized other factions to speak for them?

The silent majority has been heard and the vocal minority doesn't like it, crying "illegal procedures"! Sounds like sour grapes to me! There ARE other views than pro-ERA and pro-abortion.

MRBC, ball-carrier

Omaha, Neb.
The Missouri River Basin Commission (MRBC), based in Omaha, functions as the ball-carrier for dam-building promoters. This is the consensus of environmentalists after studying a draft report of the Missouri River Basin Water Resources Plan, recently published by the Commission.

The MRBC is not well known and probably less understood by people in the Midlands. River basin commissions were established by the Water Resources Planning Act of 1965. Commission membership consists of representatives from the Departments of Interior, Army, Agriculture, Commerce, Energy Research and Development, the Federal Power Commission, EPA, HEW, and from each basin state.

The Missouri River Basin States are Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas and

Missouri. Funding for the commission is provided by the federal government and Basin States on a 75%-25% basis. The chairman of the commission is appointed by the president.

The Water Resources Plan, referred to by the commission as a comprehensive, coordinated, joint plan for water and related land resources development, is in reality a laundry list of federal and state water projects, and the commission recommends that they be approved without any apparent investigation or documentation. Projects opposed by construction proponents, such as the Platte River Wildlife Refuge and Whooping Crane Habitat Study, both ongoing projects in the basin, and of critical national concern, were not mentioned in the plan.

The MRBC is, for all practical purposes, closed to the public. There was no public participation in formulating the plan. The Corps of Engineers and Bureau of Reclamation, through the Department of Interior are represented on the commission and many of the state members actively promote the building of dams and other water projects.

After final approval, the plan will be submitted with its recommendations, through the President and then to Congress. Hopefully, along the way, it will be discovered that it is not a comprehensive, coordinated joint plan but only a list of projects that are being recommended by the same sources that recommended them through other channels.

Another question being asked by environmentalists is, why is the present MRBC chairman, John Neuberger, being strongly supported by Governor J. J. Exon, a Democrat? Neuberger is a Republican, appointed by President Nixon in 1972 and strongly supported by Senator Curtis and ex-Senator Hruska, both strong dam-building proponents. The chairmanship of the commission is a political appointment and a new chairman is about to be appointed. If Exon prevails, Neuberger can be appointed to replace himself.

TEL HOFFMAN

Paris — Among French political characteristics now obtruding increasingly as the electoral season approaches are an obsession with logic, especially that derived from formulations of the philosopher Descartes, and a tacit recognition that this pleasant country functions comfortably only with a strong leader at the helm.

Both traits are involved in preparations for the 1978 legislative elections where current indications are that a coalition of Socialists and Communists, theoretically bound by a "common program," will win a parliamentary majority and the right to name a government under the umbrella of President Giscard d'Estaing.

But in the land of Cartesian logic — called "intellectual terrorism" by Alain Peyrefitte, a brilliant Gaullist minister — the kind of compromise familiar elsewhere is hard to achieve. Thus, the French have always found it easier to draft new constitutions than to amend the one they already have.

France made the adjustment from great empire to secondary power with remarkable ease for two reasons: first, because it has an industrious, bright, realistic population and a happily well-balanced economy (except for energy resources); second, because the most fundamental adjustments were made under the guidance of a very strong leader, De Gaulle.

De Gaulle shrewdly managed to play right against left and Moscow against the then russophil French Communists. He had an idea of where he wanted to go and how to get there. Giscard — whose name resembles the archaic French word for cunning, "Guisard" — has unfortunately manifested more good intentions than good result.

Highly intelligent, ambitious, he started to climb the ladder early and was brought into power largely through the manipulations of Michel Poniatowski, former interior minister who has now been put out to pasture. The president was finally persuaded that Poniatowski was a bad and vote-losing influence.

Giscard sought to accelerate the transition from French reliance on agriculture to advanced industrialism and he promised a reform program that has been largely spurned by both left and right. Meanwhile, unemployment rises, production falters, and francs flow to foreign safe havens.

Investment is inadequate. About half the national health is owned by a tenth of the population. Corruption is far from unknown. There is a return of restive symptoms among the youth. And the mixture of almost chauvinistic nationalism with participation in the

. . . and how it is in France

C. L. Sulzberger

Common Market and the North Atlantic Treaty seems paradoxical to any non-Frenchman. When Brezhnev was recently here, he complained about France's "forward strategy" in the military domain, a strategy that eludes NATO experts.

Moreover, both the right and left coalitions appear to be preparing for their coming contest by developing private civil wars. Giscard and his first prime minister, Jacques Chirac, barely speak. Chirac controls the largest "pro-government" element, the Gaullists. The "common program" is a similar mess. Mitterrand denounces the Communists as "demagogic." They call him "arrogant." The Socialists are France's single largest party at least partly because they have tied the Communists to them. Mitterrand insists any other policy would have reversed the relative Communist and Socialist positions here as in Italy.

Even the basic fractions on each side of the divide are fragmented. There is a Socialist radical-left group known as "Ceres" and a pro-Soviet element among Communists. And the minority center, on which both Giscard and Chirac depend for ultimate backing, is itself bickering.

Political prejudices of the French are relatively impermanent. Chirac, when very young, was on the far left; Mitterrand on the far right. De Gaulle used to say every Frenchman is, has been, or will be a Gaullist. In fact there is a basic but ill-defined centrist yearning which can be relied upon to express its desires — if attracted by a dynamic leader.

This vague center, indeed, includes supporters of Giscard, Chirac and Mitterrand, who are closer in their aspirations than seems to be the case. But someone has to magnetize them. Giscard has named Prime Minister Raymond Barre "leader" of the majority but, although an excellent premier, he lacks charismatic appeal.

As for Giscard himself, his constitutional term in office expires only in 1981. He insists he will remain — trying to exercise ultimate executive power — no matter who wins the elections, even, presumably, working with a potential Prime Minister Mitterrand.

Well, that isn't wholly impossible. After a shaky start both might expose themselves as "centrists" after all, the one to the left of his ally, Chirac, the other to the right of his ally, Communist Georges Marchais.

Property and the pursuit of happiness

Kevin Phillips

relevant to today's political and economic climate.

For one thing, Locke had emphasized acquisition and possession of property as a right vital to individual pursuit of happiness. And when Virginia's George Mason drew up a "Declaration of Rights" for his state just a few weeks before July 4, 1776, his language spoke to and preserved Locke's concerns:

"That all men are by nature equally free and independent and have certain inherent rights, of which, when they enter into a state of society, they cannot, by any compact, deprive or divest their posterity; namely, the enjoyment of life and liberty, with the means of acquiring and possessing property, and pursuing and obtaining happiness and safety."

Quite a difference, isn't there? Note the extent to which the subsequent language of the July 4 document moved away from linking property and the pursuit of happiness. Thomas Jefferson was largely responsible, acting on his belief that enjoyment of property was just one aspect of a pursuit of happiness that also depends on a person's inner, moral disposition.

A century after the signing of the Declaration of Independence, Jefferson's relative de-emphasis of property made sense — our Centennial culture of 1876 worshipped wealth as the first god in the temple of American Democracy, and the broader spirit of the Declaration was a useful offset to Mammon and J. Pierpont Morgan.

Not today, though. Things are going too far in the other direction. The arguments of John Locke and George Mason — that because people are selfish by nature, rights to property and the acquisition of property must be protected to insure a good life, and society — have been philosophically neglected and legislatively spurned. That must change.

In Britain, where John Locke's principles, though native-born, have been all but trodden under the advance of collectivism, a plucky new organization calling itself "Aims for Freedom and Enterprise" named July 1 as "International Free Enterprise Day." Prominent Britons signed newspaper advertisements proclaiming a "Declaration of Freedom — 1977" and declaring "that prosperity needs free enterprise, and that without free enterprise, there can be no liberty."

Their warning, while exaggerated, is also timely. Having strayed much further from Locke's principles than the United States, and having experienced a partly commensurate economic and political decay, the British are also ahead of us in pondering shared traditions that need to be rethought.

Kreuscher is ASCS choice

By Dominick Costello, Farm Editor

The State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) has recommended Glenn Kreuscher, Nebraska director of agriculture, to be its choice as state executive director of ASCS.

"Kreuscher was our unanimous choice for the job," said Dale Sampson, Utica, ASCS committee member.

Kreuscher has confirmed that he will accept the job if his nomination is approved by federal officials.

Sources at the State Department of Agriculture suggest that Roger Sandman, assistant director of agriculture, will likely succeed Kreuscher as state director of agriculture. Sandman, a former vocational agriculture instructor, has been assistant director for six years.

The committee still has a problem to solve, however, before their choice can take over his new post.

Glenn Kreuscher ... wanted for top post

"We are sure he will be approved, but we don't know what to do about Paul Sindt. We have asked Arnold Bjorlie, our regional director, for some guidance on the matter," Sampson said.

Sindt, a Republican appointee, is the current state executive director and has declined to leave his post. He is a veteran and as such has tenure in the job. Sources close to the situation have indicated that if Sindt doesn't leave soon, an effort may be made to force his resignation.

The state committee had appointed Harold Rademacher as special assistant to the state committee and directed that all correspondence be directed through Rademacher which, in effect, left Sindt with nothing to do.

State law designates the state executive director as a member of the state emergency board and some other official advisory groups, so Sindt has continued to serve on these boards.

Rademacher, contacted at a meeting in Beatrice, said he had expected Kreuscher to win the appointment for about two weeks. Rademacher had been a candidate for the job himself.

"I expect to return to my previous job as a grain storage specialist. I could work at the state level or in Washington, but I would just as soon stay in Nebraska," he said.

Sampson confirmed that the committee expects to keep Rademacher in Nebraska. "We will need him because there is a tremendous demand for grain storage facilities and grain loans," he said.

Sindt, contacted at his office in Lincoln, declined to comment on the pending appointment of Kreuscher to the job Sindt still holds. "I am getting ready to go on two weeks vacation," Sindt said.

It has been six months since President Carter took office, and the state's two largest federal agricultural agencies still lack a Democratic head. ASCS is headed by Sindt and the Farmers Home Administration has L.R. Waldo as acting head.

Leonard Hanks of Omaha has been nominated for that job, but the appointment hasn't been announced.

New trial for youth likely to be sought

Outstate Nebraska Bureau

York — A motion seeking a new trial for Ricky A. Johnson, convicted of second degree murder in the shooting of a York policeman, is expected to be filed Friday.

Sentencing of the 17-year-old youth originally had been scheduled for Friday, but has been postponed pending District Court Judge William Norton's ruling on the new trial motion.

Hearing of that motion has been scheduled for 9 a.m. Monday, with sentencing to take place Monday afternoon should the motion be denied, according to court records.

Johnson was convicted June 29 in the April 22 death of Patrolman James M. Richardson II, who was shot once in the chest while answering a disturbance call at the Johnson home.

Joseph McCluskey, who assisted chief defense attorney John R. Brogan during the eight-day trial, confirmed Thursday that a formal motion was being prepared for filing, probably Friday. Brogan was out of town and not immediately available for comment.

However, an Associated Press report said Brogan told a reporter his motion would be based on alleged impropriety by Deputy County Atty. Vince Valentino during Valentino's final argument to the jury.

The defense is contending that Valentino went outside the evidence in discussing the path the fatal bullet took into Richardson's body, the AP added.

Johnson, who was arrested about an hour after the shooting, testified during the trial that he didn't see the policeman until after his .22-caliber rifle discharged.

Brogan also argued during the trial that a corner of the Arbor Drive Baptist Church building blocked the youth's view. Richardson's body was found on the church's front lawn.

Valentino, noting a pathologist's testimony that the bullet entered Richardson's upper left chest and lodged in the lower right back, theorized that Johnson may have had a clear view of the officer.

During the final arguments, Brogan had objected to Valentino's discussion of the bullet's path, which the prosecutor called "the key" piece of evidence.

McCluskey Thursday said that Brogan had obtained an affidavit from a York News-Times reporter who interviewed jurors following the trial.

One of the jurors, who asked to remain anonymous, told the reporter that the angle of the bullet was an important factor during the jury's 7 1/2-hour deliberations.

Johnson had been charged with first degree murder and had pleaded innocent to the charge.

Omaha council juggles Interim City Hall's fate

Omaha (AP) — The City Council Thursday rejected a proposal to use federal Public Works Act money to renovate the old and vacant Interim City Hall.

The council also refused to give the building to the Douglas County Board, which had offered to share renovation costs or pay for the work alone with $1 million or more of its own public works funds.

The decisions drew sharp criticism from County Commissioner Mike Albert, who said council members who had campaigned on promises to revitalize downtown "destroyed any credibility they had during the campaign."

Council members said time was needed to study what to do with the building. The deadline for applying for public works funds is this week.

"We can get awfully fooled by moving too quickly on these things," Councilman Warren Swigart said.

The county had planned to use the building for health and welfare offices and the Metropolitan Area Planning Agency. In addition, the Metropolitan Arts Council had expressed interest in office space there, Albert said.

"The council appeared to bow its neck and run into its own little cubbyhole and say, 'I've got the ball and the bat and you can't play unless I'm captain,'" Albert said.

A future joint city-county project on the building is possible, council members said.

Dismissed president suing meat company

Omaha (AP) — The board chairman of American Beef Packers, Inc., Harry J. Nelson, confirmed Thursday that Joseph E. Skram has been dismissed as president, chief executive officer and chief operating officer.

A statement from the company's Oakland, Iowa, headquarters said that Nelson has been elected to the posts previously held by Skram.

Skram said Wednesday he didn't know why he was dismissed as head of the company. He had held the top post in the firm since Jan. 5, 1976, and said he was given no official reason for his dismissal.

Skram said he learned he was fired in a letter received June 3. The letter was dated May 31 and his dismissal was effective May 25.

Skram declined to answer further questions, saying it would be improper because he filed a lawsuit against the firm Tuesday in Douglas County District Court in Omaha.

Nelson said Thursday that the lawsuit filed by Skram involves a contract matter which will be resolved in court. He said no further comment would be appropriate at this time.

Howard Kaslow of Omaha, attorney for ABP, said, "The board of directors felt it was appropriate to make the change." He did not say why, noting that the reasons and merits are a matter for the lawsuit. Kaslow said the company "will make all the required disclosures that need to be made."

The firm is an Oakland, Iowa-based meat packing conglomerate.

Skram succeeded ABP founder Frank West in the top position after the company declared Chapter 11 bankruptcy. In his suit, Skram said he had a contract to serve as chief executive for two years.

The company announced at the time of his appointment that Skram would remain president unless the firm's chief credit source, the General Electric Credit Corp. GECC agreed to the appointment of someone else.

Under terms of the negotiations, GECC could withdraw its credit of a new president were named without GECC approval.

A spokesman for GECC in Chicago said the corporation would not comment on ABP.

Nelson said Thursday that ABP is in full compliance with all provisions of its credit agreement with GECC.

In the suit, Skram asks for $1,250 for each week of accrued salary since May 27, plus reasonable value of employment benefits.

He said in the suit that he has "duly performed all the terms and conditions of the contract on his part and has ever since and still is ready and willing to continue in such service."

Mini-bike plans OKd for sheriff's department

St. Paul (UPI) — Region 12 Crime Commission has approved the Hall County Sheriff's Department assuming control of a mini-bike program designed for problem youth.

The "NYPIUM" or National Youth Using Mini-Bike Program was previously housed at the Grand Island YMCA and administered through a law enforcement administration grant.

Commission consultant Bob Harness, Grand Island, said Thursday the county has committed an estimated $20,000 next year to get the program started. Harness said the program's administrator would automatically become a Hall County deputy sheriff.

Harness said the mini-bike concept was part of "what we hope will be a better job with juvenile diversion programs in order to keep them out of the criminal justice system as much as possible."

Responding to potential criticism concerning deputizing a social worker with basically no law enforcement training, Harness said "the law enforcement community as a whole will be able to interact with this person who is doing the job because he is a deputy."

"The kids should be able to interact with this person because he does have a large degree of formal education in the area of dealing with kids," Harness said, adding he felt adult cooperation was needed for the program's success and adults generally "respect a law enforcement official more than a civilian."

Under the program, youth are instructed how to ride and fix mini-bikes and participate in organized mini-bike activities.

The Region 12 Commission represents Hall, Hamilton, Howard and Merrick Counties.

State's schools, Omaha receive federal grants

Omaha (UPI) — Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Nebr., announced separate federal grants totaling more than $3 million for various programs in Nebraska.

Zorinsky said the Department of Health Education and Welfare has allotted the state's schools more than $2 million while Omaha would receive $976,000 under a low rent housing modernization program grant.

Under the HEW allocation, Zorinsky said Nebraska schools would receive just over $1 million for acquisition of library resources, textbooks and other printed materials, instructional equipment and for guidance, counseling and testing programs.

Another $1.5 million has been allotted for supplementary education centers, nutrition and health projects and for student dropout prevention projects.

Funds from the Omaha grant will be used for partial gas and water main replacement, updating electrical systems, insulation of hot water pipes and other home modernization projects.

Corn production costs increasing

Estimates by University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural economists show that total irrigated corn production costs in the central part of the state have more than doubled in the past three years.

And those increased costs largely have been responsible for a drop in net profits per acre from $159.85 in 1973 to $49.79 by the end of 1976, said Dr. Larry Bitney, UNL Extension agricultural economist.

The estimates were figured from irrigated corn production cost records kept by groups of Adams County farmers since 1968, he said.

"Since the size and composition of the groups have varied from year to year, exact comparisons between years are not valid," Bitney said.

"But these data do show the costs of corn production for above average, established producers in a fairly uniform geographic area over a period of years," he said. "The costs for relatively new producers who recently have purchased all of their land and machinery certainly would be higher."

Bitney said the cost for producing irrigated corn reached $270.50 an acre in central Nebraska last year, up from the $130.35 per acre figure in 1973. The totals include cash and fixed costs, as well as a fee for labor, he said.

The total cost per bushel of irrigated corn during the three-year period, as reported by producers, rose from 91 cents in 1973 to $1.90 in 1976, he said. Total cost figures reflect no charge for general farm overhead expenses, interest on operating expenses or management, although actual labor used was included at an hourly rate.

Reported net profits rose from $159.85 an acre in 1973 to $258.87 in 1974, mostly because of an increase in corn prices from $2 a bushel to $3.25, before falling, he said.

Bitney said total costs per acre rose by more than $50 from 1975 to 1976, with cash costs accounting for $24 of the increase.

He said higher irrigation fuel costs, caused by increased energy prices and more pumping because of the dry weather, accounted for the largest part of the cash cost increase.

"Fertilizer costs per acre also were up, even though fertilizer prices were lower in 1976, because of increased usage as compared to 1975 when supplies were short," Bitney said. "The remainder of the increase in cash costs was caused by smaller increases in virtually every input item."

He said almost all of the increase in fixed costs was caused by higher land values, and the resulting rise in the computed land charge (7% of the current value)

Moldy corn and milo threaten livestock

There have been reports of moldy corn and milo this summer which may be poisonous to livestock, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln veterinarian.

Dr. Alex Hogg said there are more than 100 species of fungi or molds that produce mycotoxins (or poisons).

"Twenty of these toxins cause problems in animals and man. In order to produce enough toxin to cause poisoning, the fungi or molds need some material to support growth such as corn or milo," he explained.

Hogg said these molds also need certain temperatures and moisture conditions to produce the maximum amount of toxin.

The best conditions for toxin production are warm temperatures and high moisture in stored grain, "especially if it started to heat from spoilage, would be much more dangerous than grain still left in the field. Of course, as temperatures become warmer, the danger of poisoning from unharvested grain increases," the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said.

Some of the signs a livestock owner might notice that would indicate animals are being poisoned by moldy feed mycotoxins are reduced growth rates and stunting, he pointed out. There may be loss of appetite and weight loss, dullness, nervous signs and death, Hogg said.

Crews here for wheat harvesting

More than 1,000 custom combine crews have come into Nebraska for the wheat harvest, according to records gleaned from combine camps operated by the State Department of Labor.

The crews have nearly finished the harvest in the McCook, Benkelman, Ogallala, Imperial and Grant areas.

"Hail damage in the area has reduced yields but most of the grain is still worth combining. Yields in undamaged fields is well above average," said Don Christenson of the labor department.

Wheat south of Sidney and north to Gurley is still too green to cut. Wheat in the Kimball, Alliance and Hemingford areas should be ready to harvest around July 10 or 11 with test cutting underway in some fields, it was reported.

There was no rain in the wheat areas Thursday. However, there were some thunderstorms building in the Panhandle during the day that could delay the harvest and damage crops still in the field.

One area near Paxton received hail twice in two weeks, but most of the wheat in the area now has been harvested, the labor department said.

Sprays advised for control of grasshoppers

Grasshoppers, now hatching in large numbers, can destroy a crop if left unchecked, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln entomologist.

Robert E. Roselle, UNL extension entomologist, advises that action be taken to control the insects if farmers see eight to 12 grasshoppers per square yard. By spraying before they move into crops, much less insecticide is used over a smaller area, he noted.

Roselle recommends Diazinon for corn, gardens and around the home. For field margins and alfalfa, he suggests Toxaphene and Furadan, respectively. He said Malathion (ultra low volume)

Thone hits Carter corn target price

Auburn — "President Carter reneged on his campaign promise to guarantee farmers that they would at least get their production costs from grain crops," Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., told Auburn Kiwanis Club members Thursday night.

Thone pointed out that the first Carter Administration farm proposal which Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland brought to Congress this year called for target prices for corn in 1978 50 cents per bushel less than those Bergland voted for in 1975 when he was in the House.

"An idle threat" is the way the Nebraska First District congressman described rumors that the President might veto the farm bill. "The threat is just an attempt to intimidate Congress so it will lower loan rates and target prices for crops," Thone said.

Drive begins to put school aid increase to a vote

By Don Walton
Star Staff Writer

Opponents of increased state school aid Thursday kicked off a referendum petition drive to put the issue to a popular vote in 1978.

Gov. J. James Exon was the first citizen to sign the initial petition.

Fifty-four thousand signatures will be needed by Aug. 30 to suspend the 1977 school aid increase and place the question on the general election ballot in November of 1978.

Voters repealed an earlier school aid increase in 1974.

Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus acted as chief spokesman for the opponents Thursday, contending that an "arrogant education lobby" forced the school aid bill through the Unicameral in defiance of the electorate's expression of opposition three years ago.

The 1977 law, approved over Exon's veto in the form of LB33, would hike school aid by $20 million a year during each of the next three years.

If the law is not suspended by a successful petition effort, school aid would increase from $55 million to $75 million in 1977-78.

The state's sales tax rate already has been increased from 3% to 3 1/2% to fund the school aid hike.

But, Exon said, if a petition drive suspends the new law pending a 1978 vote of the people, he will ask the State Board of Equalization at its meeting this November to return the sales tax rate to 3%.

Money raised by the sales tax boost to fund the school aid hike would remain unexpended in the state's general fund, the governor said.

The tax rate reduction would take effect next Jan. 1.

Dworak said petitioners have established their own deadline of Aug. 10 to gather sufficient signatures to suspend the law so that school boards will be able to know whether the school aid increase will be effective before they fix their 1977-78 budgets Aug. 15.

Without an increase in state aid, he said, school boards might decide to "control spending a little, perhaps spend less money."

School aid supporters generally contend that school spending would remain unchanged, but the burden for meeting those costs would shift more to local property taxes.

State aid is paid through state sales and income tax revenue.

Exon said he favors "allowing the people" to decide the issue for themselves in 1978.

What concerned him most about the 1977 bill, he said, was the effort of some of its supporters to write the law in such a way to prevent the people from using their referendum powers to challenge its implementation.

"That was one of the worst things that ever happened in the Nebraska Legislature," the governor said.

Dworak said the message he hears from

Nebraska taxpayers is a plea for "less spending, not more; less government, not more."

The people believe that LB33 is "a vain attempt to curb the insatiable appetite of education in Nebraska," he said.

In 1974, Nebraskans said "no" to increased state spending, more state control with no assurances of lower property taxes or any promise of improved education," he declared.

The petition campaign will be conducted by a new Citizens to Reduce Taxes Committee.

Dworak and former State Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell will act as spokesmen for the group.

UNL professor gets fellowship

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Thursday said one of its journalism professors has been awarded a fellowship from the Gannett Foundation.

The university said Michael Lewis Stricklin, a newly-hired assistant professor, received the grant to attend a workshop for beginning journalism teachers at Indiana University July 22-23.

Stricklin will assume his teaching duties at UNL this fall.

Josephine Cantu Weber, a UNL journalism assistant professor, was one of three alternates selected.

FBI reports Lincoln, Omaha serious crimes rates lower

United Press International

An FBI crime report released Thursday indicates serious crime in Nebraska's two largest cities during the first three months of 1977 declined slightly over the same period in 1976.

The number of serious crimes reported nationally in the first quarter of 1977 dropped 9% over the same period last year, the FBI said. The decline was attributed partially to last winter's severe weather.

The FBI's crime report for cities with populations of more than 100,000 indicates both Omaha and Lincoln had fewer serious crimes in 1977 than in 1976. The report stressed, however, that this year's figures are only preliminary.

Omaha's preliminary crime index total for the first quarter of 1977 was 4,717. The crime index total includes murder and non-negligent manslaughter, forcible rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny and motor vehicle theft.

Lincoln's preliminary crime index, which includes the same crimes used in Omaha's index, totaled 1,839. During the first three months of 1976, Omaha's index was 5,523 and Lincoln's was 1,948.

Nationally, forcible rape rose 5% and aggravated assault increased 1% from 1976 to 1977. But preliminary figures for Omaha and Lincoln show declines in both of those categories.

Forcible rape in Lincoln dropped from eight last year to 6 in 1977. In Omaha, 49 forcible rapes were reported in 1976, while 29 were recorded this year.

In addition, Lincoln's murder index followed the national trend, which showed a slight decline. Two murders were reported last year in Lincoln and one this year. Omaha, however, recorded four murders last year and six in 1977.

Although robbery decreased 8% nationally, Omaha and Lincoln recorded slight increases. Omaha reported 213 robberies last year and 255 this year, while Lincoln had 16 in 1976 and 22 in 1977.

Hot times ahead for east campus

Research on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus may be hurt and students and faculty may be more uncomfortable than usual this summer, according to Bob Lovitt, UNL assistant vice chancellor for finance.

Air conditioning in some East Campus buildings has been reduced or eliminated because of the Legislature's failure to appropriate $1.5 million for an additional chiller unit.

Present units cannot cool all of the buildings which have been added to the East Campus recently, said Harley Schrader, physical plant administrator.

The university asked for $500,000 this year to begin planning for the additional chiller unit so it could be ready next summer. That request was denied, Schrader said.

Almost every building on the East Campus has some research function which requires certain temperatures, he said.

Schrader has attempted to set up a priority system without hurting campus functions, but "it's damn difficult when nearly every building has research going on," he said.

The downtown campus does not have a similar problem, he said.

Hardy building to hold offices

Commercial Federal Savings and Loan wants to convert the Hardy building at 1314 O St. into a division office, according to Kenny King, an executive of the firm.

King said he feels the public might have been confused by a story published after the June 24 meeting of the Downtown Advisory Committee (DAC). The story said the J.C. Penney building, just west of the Hardy building, would be razed.

Commercial Federal never made an offer on the Penney building, King said. Penney's was originally asked if they would like to expand their facility on the block and possible become involved in what had been termed Cen-trum II, he added, but the idea was rejected after Penney's decided they'd rather be the anchor for a new shopping center, elsewhere.

King's plan, approved by DAC, is for a Commercial Federal office, and nothing more, he said, noting the company owns buildings on 175 feet of the block in question. The Hardy building comprises 75 of those feet, and the 100 feet to the east would be converted to surface and subsurface parking for about 50 cars.

Entrance and exit to the parking and driveup windows of the proposed facility would be from O St., rather than from 14th St., as the city originally wanted, he explained.

Petition seeks recalls

York (AP) — A group attempting to force the recall of the five York County Commissioners have received about 1,900 signatures on petitions asking for an election, a leader of the group said Thursday.

Group leader Charles Brown termed the figure conservative. The petition drive, initiated in May, needs at least 1,667 valid signatures to force a recall election.

The recall effort is being made by persons dissatisfied with a county board decision early this year to demolish the 91-year-old courthouse on the York Town Square and build a new one.

Two bond issues to finance construction of a new courthouse have been rejected by voters.

Robert Keller appointed to parole board

Gov. J. James Exon announced the appointment Thursday of Robert J. Keller to a full-time position on the State Board of Parole, at an annual salary of $17,782.

Keller, 53, is the chief probation officer for the Lincoln Municipal Court, a job he has held since 1968.

He will complete the term of Catherine Dahlquist of Omaha who resigned in May to become a member of the state Liquor Control Commission. His term will expire Sept. 9, 1978.

As chief probation officer Keller has developed a number of nationally recognized probation programs. In 1976 the Volunteers in Probation was designated as an exemplary program by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. Keller also helped organize the first municipal court probation program in Nebraska.

The Driver Improvement School for Youthful Offenders and the Drinking Driver program have resulted in a number of awards from the American Traffic Institute and the American Bar Association.

Keller also has held various jobs at the Nebraska Penal and Correctional Complex before joining the probation office.

Other board members are John Greenholtz and Eugene Neal, both full time, and Doris Collins and Ed Rowley, part-time members.

Rosenlof named to health board

Gov. J. James Exon announced the appointment Thursday of Dr. Robert C. Rosenlof of Kearney to the State Board of Health.

Dr. Rosenlof will complete the term of Dr. V. Franklin Colon of Friend who has resigned to become associate director of the Department of Family Medicine at the University of Cincinnati.

Lucky 7 for Edna Keller

By Jim Camden
Star Staff Writer

Edna Keller always considered seven her lucky number, and Thursday she had plenty of them.

On the seventh day of the seventh month of the seventy-seventh year, Mrs. Keller turned — you guessed it — 77.

Mrs. Keller of 2133 S. 51st St. said she didn't realize when she woke up this morning that her life had suddenly come up sevens. Her husband, Clarence, however, quickly reminded her.

"I hadn't thought about it — oh, maybe once or twice a long time ago," she said.

Mrs. Keller was born Edna Jensen, one of seven children on a ranch in Howard County. Her parents were Danish immigrants who had come to Nebraska after her father had spent seven years in the Danish Navy. An older sister had also been born on July 7.

She came to Lincoln in 1916 to become a nurse, but married Clarence instead. They have been Lincolniters ever since then.

Her most vivid memories over her 77 years are of the Depression and the Second World War, she said. During the '40s and '50s, she worked for the Lincoln School System supervising cafeteria programs.

Lincoln has changed quite a bit in the years she's lived here, noted Mrs. Keller who can recall cornfields and empty spaces where houses stand now. People used to call Sheridan Blvd. "Mortgage Row" during the Depression, she added.

"We've had a full life, and a busy one," she said.

Keeping busy includes teaching crafts as a volunteer at Madonna and Tabitha nursing homes, and visiting shut-ins. At 70, to keep just a little bit busier, she took up bowling.

Although Thursday was her big day, Mrs. Keller said she didn't have any big plans short of going out to lunch and dinner, and didn't have any plans to test how lucky all her sevens made her.

"At my age, you're just lucky to be able to get up in the morning," she said.

Inmate's hearing to decide Regional Center commitment

Robert Bessent, facing charges in connection with the aborted June 27 jailbreak from the Lincoln City Jail, "is suicidal and believes he is possessed by a demon," according to Deputy County Attorney Roger Hirsch.

Bessent, 23, may be sent to the Lincoln Regional Center for treatment pending the results of a hearing Friday morning by the Lancaster County Mental Health Board, Hirsch said. Bessent is currently being held at the Nebraska Penal Complex on a three- to five-year sentence for the robbery of the Congress Inn Motel in February.

He also faces multiple felony charges stemming from the jailbreak attempt, as do two other inmates. Bessent's partner in the robbery and jailbreak attempts, Donald Routhier, 22, committed suicide by hanging himself at the prison last Saturday.

Hirsch filed commitment papers for Bessent Thursday after penitentiary officials and the staff psychiatrist informed the county attorney's office that Bessent was suicidal. They added that he had already attempted suicide while in custody, but no further information about that attempt was made available.

Friday's hearing will determine if Bessent is mentally ill, and, if such cause is found, he will be transferred immediately to the regional center, Hirsch said. A final hearing, at which positive proof must be presented, will follow in 10 days, he added.

Warden Robert Parratt said that an officer is on 24-hour duty "standing where he can see directly into Bessent's cell," pending the outcome of the hearings.

Proposed construction budget up 45%

By Gordon Winters
Star Staff Writer

The proposed construction budget handed to the City Council Thursday by the mayor's office is up 45% from last year.

The lion's share of the increase, almost $80,000 of the proposed $81.5 million total, is for projects by the Lincoln Electric System.

LES currently is building a coal-fired generating plant near Wheatland, Wyo., in a joint venture with five other utilities. That is the reason for the city's swollen construction budget.

That and other LES projects will be financed by electric rates and so do not affect the city's tax rate.

Over the next six years, according to the capital improvements program, the city is planning to build about $400.2 million worth of projects. That sum represents a cut of about $28 million from the preliminary capital improvements program prepared earlier this year.

The program is distinguished from that of previous years by an increased reliance on general obligation bonds, which must be put to a vote, to finance construction projects.

For example, that is the fate of two new projects which appear for the first time this year in the capital improvements program.

The mayor is recommending that two proposals, a new $1.9 million police station and a $2.8 million jail, be put to a vote, with the police station on the ballot in 1982-83 and the jail on the ballot in 1980-81.

In the meantime, however, the mayor supports spending $25,000 in the next fiscal year to design the jail and spending another $135,000 the following year to draw up final plans. Those expenditures would not be put to a vote.

Another project that would be put to a vote is the proposed $500,000 Seacrest Swimming Pool in East Lincoln. According to the mayor's plan, that project would be on the ballot in 1978-79.

Among the changes made from the preliminary capital improvements program approved earlier this spring is a postponement until 1982-83 of a proposed expenditure of $183,000 to build a fire station at 27th and Old Cheney Rd. The project had been planned for the next fiscal year.

Other major portions of the construction projects slated for next year include $8 million for streets and highways, $6.3 million for sewers and $2.9 million for the water system.

The large totals for sewer and water improvements reflect the city's plans to build a new sewage treatment plant and continued expansion of the city's wellfields near Ashland.

Bumberton trip thrills children

By Deb Gray
Star Staff Writer

Travel to the kingdom of King Sweeney, a regular meanie ruler who could have given lessons to the Grinch who stole Christmas.

Although the ruler is nasty, the folks who live here are not. They are lovable guys with peculiar habits. Here is what you would find:

There's the town of Bumberton, where people carry umbrellas when the sun shines. There is Hopping, where people can't walk, skip or leap. They hop themselves into exhaustion because they have a weird way of wearing pants — they put both of their legs into one pantleg.

And, there is Snickerville, where the townspeople can't talk, but only carry signs and mumble-jumble around.

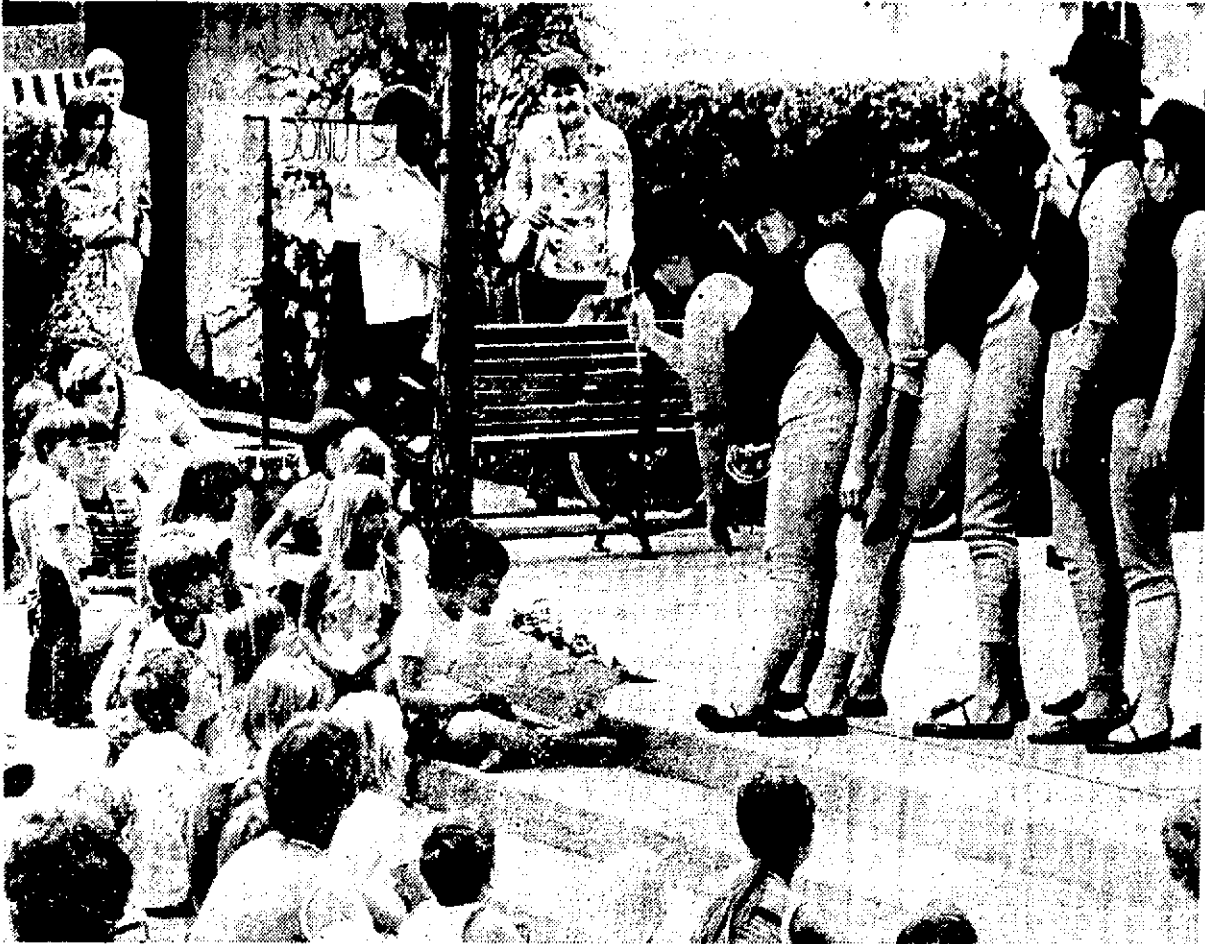

Towns like this can only be entered through a child's mind. And about 200 persons — mostly children — took this journey Thursday noon as they watched the opening performance of "Bumberton, Hopping & Snickerville," a children's musical presented by the Nebraska Repertory Theater.

The musical was written by Doug Anderson, musical director of the Nebraska Repertory Theater, who is working on his Master of Fine Arts degree at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The play, written in rhyme, had a lot of word play to appeal to grown-up literary tastes.

But it was the children who gave the show, its spirit as they yelled goodby to the hero Cheese as he made his exits on his way to save the land from King Sweeney's rules.

"Bumberton, Hopping & Snickerville" will have one more performance in Lincoln this summer, at Gateway Mall on Aug. 7.

The sign-bearing residents of Snickerville meet the children of Lincoln.

Rep. Smith asks delay in dredge-and-fill rules

Omaha (AP) — Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., said Thursday she has asked President Carter to delay implementation of new Army Corps of Engineers' dredge-and-fill regulations for 90 days while they are clarified.

Mrs. Smith said in a news release from Washington that the regulations would require permits for dredging and filling in all waters flowing faster than five cubic feet a second and larger than five surface acres.

Legislation approved since "a questionable 1975 court interpretation of Congressional intent" would restrict corps regulation to navigable waters, she said.

All 22 rivers and most streams in Nebraska would be covered by the new regulations, she said.

"A 90-day delay in the enforcement of these regulations would give Congress time to clarify its dredge and fill policy," Mrs. Smith said.

Exon more convinced study of gasohol feasibility needed

Associated Press

Gov. J. J. Exon said after meeting Thursday with officers of a private firm planning a grain alcohol plant in Nebraska that he is more convinced than ever that a "gasohol" feasibility study is needed.

"Even Scheller says that his studies aren't on gasohol, and I think that's news," Exon said after a private session with William Scheller and Ross Rasmussen of the Nebraska Grain Alcohol and Chemical Co.

Scheller, president of the firm, also is technical adviser to the Nebraska Agricultural Products Industrial Utilization (Gasohol) Committee. The private firm has potential government loans and subsidies to seek that would enhance profitability.

The Thursday meeting was to allay any concern Exon might feel about Scheller having a potential conflict of interest by involvement with the firm and the committee.

Scheller said he told Exon the planned plant was for grain alcohol, not the gasohol blend of 90 per cent gasoline and 10 per cent grain alcohol which the committee is researching and testing.

Scheller characterized Exon's mood as "satisfied" after the session on the subject of conflicts, and Exon agreed later as he discussed the need for a new and independent study of gasohol.

The governor said he didn't know until the Thursday meeting that the planned plant was for grain alcohol production for sale to industrial markets.

"Up until this time, the governor," Exon said, speaking of himself in the third person, "and I think most of the other people in the state of Nebraska had been led to believe that the Scheller & Co. plant was to be for gasohol."

Scheller said as yet there is no market for gasohol and that the plant would be for grain alcohol production to market with industry. Rasmussen said gasohol blend potential would exist for 2 million of the plant's 20 million gallon grain alcohol capacity if gasohol marketing became feasible.

Exon said that knowledge, and the on-independent nature of the Stone-Webster report done for the gasohol committee, makes him believe even more strongly in the need for a new study.

Exon said the Stone-Webster report was based on Scheller's figures.

"There's never been a study on gasohol," he said.

The governor said his continuing concern is whether gasohol is feasible when gasoline sells more cheaply than grain alcohol at $1.10 a gallon for the alcohol.

Exon and gasohol committee members have been at odds recently over whether more study is needed, with most panel members indicating the time for study has passed.

Exon recently questioned the objectivity of some committee members and said he might not reappoint three of the members when the time comes.

The gasohol research is designed to provide a market for distressed grains and help with petroleum shortages by blending gas with grain alcohol.

Suit filed in fatal explosion

Omaha (UPI) — An explosion at an Ainsworth home two years ago has led to the filing of a $305,000 civil negligence suit in U.S. District Court against Petrolane-Ainsworth Gas Service, Inc.

The suit was filed by Marjorie Langer, Little Rock, Calif., acting in behalf of her husband, George, who died from injuries suffered from the blast at the Mary Langer home in Ainsworth.

The suit alleged Langer had retired at the home of his sister on June 28, 1975 and his wife was bathing and washing her hair when the explosion followed by a fire occurred.

The suit contends Petrolane-Ainsworth Gas Service Inc. of Ainsworth was negligent in the installation, construction, maintenance and distribution of propane or liquified petroleum gas from a tank in the yard to a water heater and space heater in the house.

The alleged negligence, the suit said, caused a gas leak to occur and gas accumulated in a crawl space under the house where it was ignited to cause the explosion.

Langer, who was 66, died July 10 from injuries sustained in the blast.

The suit noted Langer and Mrs. Langer, who was 49 at the time, operated an antique store in California and Langer also furnished support to his mother, Anna, 88.

The Langers were visiting the Mary Langer home when the incident occurred.

The case was referred to U.S. District Judge Robert V. Deane.

Disbarment of attorney is sought

A recommendation to disbar Omaha attorney Ralph R. Bremers for misconduct has been filed with the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Harold Rock, the referee of a State Bar Association hearing on charges against Bremers, said Bremers mishandled estates he administered and made personal loans from the funds of some estates.

"The accounts rendered were so grossly misstated that one can only conclude that dishonesty, deceit and misrepresentation were obviously present, and perhaps actual fraud," Rock wrote in his recommendation for disbarment.

The Douglas County Court removed Bremers as administrator of the Amy R. Rich estate in 1974 after he failed to file the proper forms for the estate.

Bremers, 64, has been an attorney since 1935. He was an unsuccessful candidate for a Douglas County judgeship in 1960.

Lincoln man pleads guilty to 4 charges

A Lincoln man arrested in December for 10 crimes in the sexual assaults of three Lincoln women has pleaded guilty to charges of using a firearm to commit a felony and three counts of first-degree sexual assault.

Dale Dinges, 22, 244 E. St., entered the plea in Lancaster County District Court Thursday. Sentencing was deferred pending an Aug. 8 hearing ordered by Judge William Blase to determine if Dinges is a sexual sociopath. The judge also appointed Dr. John Baldwin and Dr. F.E. Whittle to conduct individual psychiatric examinations of Dinges and file written reports with the court.

Two counts of kidnapping, two of robbery and two of using a firearm to commit a felony were dismissed. Dinges is in the custody of the Lancaster County Sheriff's office pending placement at the regional center.

Dr. Haller gets Creighton post

Omaha (UPI) — Creighton University Thursday announced the appointment of an associate dean in its school of medicine.

The university said the appointment of Dr. Michael J. Haller, a medical school faculty member since 1966, was effective immediately. In his newly created position, Haller will serve under Medical Dean Joseph M. Holthaus.

Scottsboro drama 'lies,' woman, 70, tells court

Winchester, Tenn. (AP) — "Don't turn on me," cried the main witness against the Scottsboro Boys as cross-examining attorneys inquired Thursday about testimony which sent nine black men to Alabama prisons four decades ago.

"I've told the truth at every trial," said Victoria Price Street, now 70, testifying in her own $6 million libel suit against NBC for its movie, "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys."

Mrs. Street contends the film falsely portrayed her as a perjurer and a woman of questionable character. She denied the trials were based on racial prejudice.

"If they'd been a bunch of white boys, I'd have done the same thing," she said. "It wasn't because of color that I charged. Because there's as good colored folk as there are white folk."

All nine black men were convicted of rape and served a total of 130 years in prison before being pardoned or paroled.

After several character witnesses testified for Mrs. Street, the trial was adjourned until Friday morning.

Mrs. Street said she and Ruby Bates came to Chattanooga looking for work but hitched a ride on a freight train back to Huntsville, Ala., March 25, 1931. There, she said, they were raped by the nine blacks.

"When they stopped the train, I was still laying down," she said. "One of them was in there and Ruby was in there and they woke me up and helped me get my clothes on."

Mrs. Street said she was bleeding from her head and other parts of her body. "And I've got the scars to prove it, from where those black boys cut me," she exclaimed, pointing excitedly to her chest, her face, her right arm and her back.

Doctors testifying at the original trials said they had seen no blood on the victims.

The nine young men were tried three times and, at one point, faced death sentences. One of the nine, Clarence Norris, is known to survive. He was found recently in New York City, where he had fled in violation of parole. He returned to Alabama to receive a pardon.

The movie was shown to the jury Wednesday.

Mrs. Street is portrayed in the movie as an attractive brunette with a strong Southern accent. An actor playing a defense attorney says, "The defense in this case made one thing perfectly clear — that Victoria Price was a whore."

The woman's attorney said that statement was not made during the trial, that it was made up by the scriptwriter, John McGreevy.

Although Mrs. Street's undergarments were exhibited at one of the trials, she denied Thursday they were the ones she was wearing at the time of the alleged attack.

Asked whether she had identified the step-ins exhibited as the ones she had been wearing during the assault, Mrs. Street said she couldn't remember. Half a dozen times, she denied testimony from transcripts of the original trial.

NBC first broadcast the made-for-television movie in April 1976, and Mrs. Street said she learned of it when a neighbor called her and told her she ought to watch "that horrible show."

"I did," she said, "and it just tore me up. The worst part of it was that they said it was all lies and I knew that just wasn't so."

Opinions may be asked on new lawyer ad code

The Nebraska State Bar Association (NSBA) may ask for public input to aid in its deliberations on the adoption of a new state code on lawyer advertising.

Lincoln attorney Kyle Johnson, NSBA advertising committee chairman, said his eight-member committee will meet July 19, at which time it may draft at least a preliminary revision of the state code, and possibly decide whether or not to solicit public opinion on the issue.

In the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's recent decision permitting attorneys to advertise their names and locations, certain routine services and related fees, an American Bar Association (ABA) task force on lawyer advertising has chosen to seek public input on revisions of the ABA's Code of Professional Responsibility.

Johnson said his group has been charged with preparing a new state code that can be considered by the Nebraska Supreme Court "as soon as reasonably possible." He said that NSBA Pres. Richard Knudsen of Lincoln and President-Elect Dan Jewell of Norfolk will work with the committee in preparing the document.

NSBA ad committee members are: Johnson, William Walker, Robert Grimit and Roger Hirsch, all of Lincoln; John North, Howard Moldenhauer and John Zeilinger, all of Omaha; and Charles Adams of Aurora.

Former Omaha officer receives modified bond

Omaha (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Albert G. Schatz has modified the bonding provisions for a former Omaha police officer convicted in a multi-million dollar heroin conspiracy.

Schatz acted on a petition filed by J. Joseph McQuillan, the Omaha attorney representing Leonard Smith, 40, Omaha.

Smith and three others were convicted in May by a U.S. District Court jury following testimony of Ike "Papa Rock" Conway, the former head of the north Omaha heroin operation who turned government informant.

Smith, a former police vice and narcotics officer, was charged with accepting bribes in exchange for providing police intelligence information and protection to Conway's heroin ring.

Schatz sentenced Smith to seven years in prison, and Smith appealed to the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals following Schatz' denial of a new trial motion.

Smith has remained free under $10,000 bond and ordered to remain in the state of Nebraska.

In his petition, McQuillan said Smith had been hired by Johnson Security Service, an Omaha private detective agency, and asked Schatz for permission to travel in Iowa and Kansas "when necessary in the course of his employment with Johnson security."

In granting the request, Schatz said "all other conditions of said bond will be continued in full force and effect."

Nebraska power board to study rate proposal

The Nebraska Municipal Power Pool board of directors decided it will officially review the proposed rate increases the Nebraska Public Power District will implement next year.

The power district is in its biennial analysis that will result in new power rates and transmission charges for 1978-79. The new rates will be effective Jan. 1, 1978.

While the review is not complete, power district officials have hinted that wholesale customers might receive a rate increase in the range of 10% to 20%.

According to pool general manager H. Steve Wacker, there may be some differences among pool member cities on what aspect of the new rate structure should be studied. He said some cities would be concerned primarily with wholesale power charges, while others would be concerned with transmission charges.

Parks plan contests

The annual city-wide Hula-Hoop and Frisbee Contest, sponsored by the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Department, is scheduled for July 17 at Holmes Park.

The Hula-Hoop contest will be judged on the knee knockers, alley oop, hula-hop, the stork, wrap the mummy and a one-minute freestyle routine.

The Frisbee competition will include distance, accuracy, curves, skip flights and novelty catches.

Added to this year's events will be a "K-9 Catch and Fetch" contest in which dogs will be able to display catching and fetching skills.

Owners of competing animals must be at least 12 years old. Registration for the contests will be at 1 p.m. with competition beginning at 2 p.m.

State to get funds for roads

Associated Press
Nebraska will receive $38.4 million in federal-aid highway funds effective October 1, Federal Highway Administrator William M. Cox announced Thursday.

The funds are for fiscal 1978, with the exception of more than $2.1 million for the interstate system resurfacing program for fiscal 1979.

A spokesman for the Department of Roads said the $38.4 million will be distributed to cities and counties on a formula basis which now is being determined.

Still to be divided among the states is $3.25 billion in interstate system construction funds for fiscal 1979, which will be done when Congress approves a new cost estimate for the system.

Among Nebraska will receive in various categories:

- Consolidated Primary System, $17.7 million.
- Rural secondary system, $7 million.
- Urban system, $4.4 million.
- Metropolitan planning, $146,000.
- Elimination of highway hazard locations and roadside obstacles, $1.3 million.
- Railway-highway crossing on federal aid system, $1.4 million.
- Highway safety program funds, $271,462.
- Forest highways, $30,806.

Awaiting funding approval from Congress are two projects. A project for safer off-system roads would give Nebraska $2.6 million and one for railway-highway crossings off the federal system would provide $879,114.

Equalization meeting set for July 19

The State Board of Equalization will meet July 19 to determine the average state mill levy for 1978 and to handle property assessment matters.

Tax Commissioner William Peters, a board member, said the five-man panel will review county abstracts of assessment and consider centrally assessed property.

Agenda items include:

- Railroad valuations.
- Valuation and assessment of railroad rolling stock.
- Valuation and assessment of franchises.
- Review of railroad terminal tax assessments.
- Valuation and assessment of private car line companies.
- Valuation and assessment of nonresident bus and truck companies.

The board also will hear any appeals.

Opinion issued on inheritance tax money use

Associated Press

The state Justice Department has issued an official opinion saying that a county may use inheritance tax money for construction of a facility to lease to a mental retardation services unit.

The office of Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas was replying in the opinion to a question raised by Charles A. Bromm, Saunders County attorney from Wahoo.

Bromm was checking to determine if such inheritance tax money could be used to construct a facility in Region 5. The facility would be for a workshop and administrative offices in the mental retardation program.

School files reported used in campaigns

Omaha (UPI) — Mrs. David Stahmer, wife of a former school board member, told a committee investigating Omaha School Board election campaigns she broke school policies by using student files to address political campaign letters.

Mrs. Stahmer said she did the work at the Fontenelle School years ago for the Parent Teacher Assn.

Stahmer also is a former state senator.

A citizen's committee is investigating possible irregularities in school board elections last fall.

Mrs. Stahmer said she commented because board member Mrs. Maurice Frank had told the committee earlier that to her knowledge student files had never been used for campaigning.

Regional Center images recalled

By Patty Boutler
Star Staff Writer

When Shirley Roby saw the film "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" she could hardly contain the outrage that welled within her.

"I wanted to jump up and stop the movie and shout that those things aren't going on today," she said.

Ms. Roby knows more about mental institutions than most people. She worked at the Lincoln Regional Center eight years — first as a psychiatric technician and then as volunteer coordinator.

In this age of advocacy, Ms. Roby stands out as a strong defender of the Regional Center. She's worked to promote a positive image for the state hospital.

Officially the assistant coordinator, she directed the hospital's volunteer coordinating efforts for several years. She lacked the college degree or three years of experience to qualify for the rank and pay of coordinator. As she accrued her experience, she submitted a request for change of title, only to find the experience level had been increased to five years.

Frustrated by what she describes as a "real run-around administrative-wise," Ms. Roby resigned her position recently when a better opportunity came up. Regional Center Chaplain Lowell Gauthier has taken over the volunteer responsibilities.

Still, it was with regret Mrs. Roby left her work at the center. The challenges that go with the job, however, are still there. She talks about how she dealt with them and what she thinks still needs to be done.

The horror stories, both real and imaginary, that people traditionally associate with mental institutions made Ms. Roby's job tough, she said. The way things were is not the way things are, she insists. Books, television, and movies, she said, are responsible for the distorted image.

Ms. Roby did what she could to change that image. As part of her education program, she developed a slide show for presentation to classes and community groups. In pictures and script, she contrasted the once-overcrowded conditions and lack of patient programs with modern methods of therapy and care.

Audience reactions reaffirmed her belief that most people are ignorant of the workings of mental institutions. "They can't believe this is what goes on; it's better than they thought," she said. She answered questions about shock treatments, lobotomies and heavy sedation — practices of the past that still cloud the respectability of mental health treatment today.

Making fact out of fiction gave Ms. Roby a good feeling. "I could make people see that these things are not going on," she said.

Rather than erase the past, Ms. Roby tried to preserve it. "I was sitting there thinking one day that it's a shame not much of the history of the hospital is left out here," she said.

Thoughts clicked into action. Ms. Roby set out to create a hospital museum, tracing the history of the institution in pictures and relics. Much of her effort spilled over into non-working hours, but that didn't matter; the museum was taking shape. Old newspaper clippings and interviews with employees who worked on the grounds 20 and 30 years ago helped reconstruct the past.

Located near the main lobby of the administration building, the museum is a stopping-off place for visitors who tour the Regional Center.

But educating people was only part of Ms. Roby's business; her main function was to recruit and coordinate volunteers at the center. Group volunteers participate in socialization and recreational activities with residents, while individuals with communications skills work on a one-to-one basis with clients.

Students of psychology, mental health and nursing make excellent volunteers, says Ms. Roby.

This year she worked out a contract with a university psychology class so students could get credit for time spent with residents. She said she hopes that program can be expanded to other schools next year.

One success story of a high school volunteer working one-on-one with a teenage resident culminated at a high school homecoming dance. The volunteer had found a double date for her Regional Center friend. The occasion set the center staff abuzzing, Ms. Roby recalled. "It was like the girl had 30 mothers. We were all worried about what she was going to wear and what the boy was like!"

Feedback from volunteers often indicates positive client behavior that the staff finds encouraging. "The things volunteers see and do with clients on a relaxed one-to-one basis, we often don't see," she added.

If she could get groups involved, Ms. Roby said she liked to see residents go off "campus," as she calls the hospital grounds. Non-institutionalization is a goal for most of the residents; trips into the community help ease the way, she said.

Shirley Roby, former Regional Center assistant coordinator, stands in the center's museum which she began with old photographs and relics.

Entanglements easily worsen

DEAR ABBY: I never did love my husband. I just married him for security, and I've been miserable ever since. I suppose I should tell you that I'm in love with my doctor. (That's why I've been so "sickly" much of the time.) My doctor is very unhappy at home. My husband is in love with my best friend, who is also trapped in a loveless marriage.

My husband would be much happier with my best friend, and I would be happier with my doctor. Isn't there some way this can be worked out so that nobody will be hurt? You only live once, you know.

LOVESICK: If you and your husband were to terminate your marriage, you could marry your doctor and your husband could marry your best friend. (Assuming, of course, that they followed suit.) That would leave your best friend's husband and the doctor's wife at loose ends.

If you could sell them on EACH OTHER, you could turn a wreck-tangle into a sextangle. But with all the switching and hitching, there's apt to be some ditching. I recommend living with the ills you know, rather than flying to others you know not of.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What should a girl do when a boy calls her a 7 o'clock in the evening and asks her if she wants to go out at 7:45? I really wanted to go, but I turned him down because I heard a girl should play hard to get.

SOPHOMORE: DEAR SOPHOMORE: If you wanted to go, you should have gone. There is nothing to be gained by playing "hard to get" if you're sitting home longing to go out.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a 24c, self-addressed, stamped (24c) envelope.

Bidding skill tested

Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

You are South, neither side vulnerable. The bidding has been:

South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♦ 3 ♠ 4 ♠

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠A983 ♥Q93 ♦K5 ♠A82
2. ♠KQJ85 ♥KQ8 ♦7 ♠J93
3. ♠AQ72 ♥AKJ4 ♦— ♠KJ85
4. ♠AKJ1032 ♥KQ4 ♦2 ♠KQ

1. Pass. There is no good reason to override partner's penalty double, and you should pass in the expectation of inflicting a two or three trick defeat. The K-x of trumps are especially valuable on defense in conjunction with your perfectly normal opening bid. The East hand is probably worthless.

2. Two spades. There is quite a difference between this hand, which is relatively weak on defense, and the preceding hand, which contains general values and can be expected to produce four defensive tricks.

In the present case, you probably won't win more than a trick or two with diamonds as trumps. You therefore have an obligation to protect partner, who presumably expected you to contribute at least three defensive tricks. Your hand is not actually a minimum opening bid, as you have a right to expect to take six tricks if spades are trumps. But, viewed defensively, it's well below par.

The best way of showing that your bid was based primarily on offensive values lies in bidding two spades.

3. Three diamonds. Here you're entitled to think that two diamonds can surely be defeated, but even so it is probably wrong to pass. North hasn't the slightest idea you have such a powerful three-suiter, and you have the opportunity to tell him all about it with a cuebid in diamonds.

This picture bid should assist partner greatly to find the best game, or slam contract. The cuebid guarantees no diamonds and a huge hand, one that is likely to produce a bigger plus on offense than defense.

4. Four spades. You can expect to defeat two diamonds here also, but again it is better to override partner's double because of the extraordinary nature of your hand. For practical purposes, you must assume that four spades can be made with 100 hours, and that two diamonds doubled will not produce a sufficiently large penalty to offset this.

Furthermore, there is a good chance for a slam if North has two aces, and this possibility cannot logically be ignored. It should be borne in mind that your partner's double of two diamonds is merely a suggestion, not an absolute command.

Aspirin claims said not proved

Washington (UPI) — After a five-year study, scientists recommended Thursday that makers of common pain relievers such as aspirin be barred from claiming the products alleviate hundreds of ailments and are fast-acting and "gentle."

In its report and recommendations to the Food and Drug Administration, the scientific panel said one problem with the advertising claims is that they may lead individuals to an erroneous self diagnosis of illnesses.

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy said in releasing the report that it is confusing to the public "to advertise that there are a hundred different kinds of pain the mechanism (of pain) is probably the same and that is why analgesics work."

If the FDA accepts the panel's recommendations, the only label claim for pain relief for both aspirin and the other major non-prescription pain reliever, acetaminophen, would read "For the temporary relief of occasional minor aches, pains and headache, and for the reduction of fever."

Current advertising says the products offer relief from a variety of ailments, from arthritis and toothache to flu and "the blues."

The scientists also recommended strict restraints on the kinds of advertising the Federal Trade Commission allows for pain killers.

The Proprietary Association, which represents non-prescription drug makers, opposed the proposed restrictions on grounds consumers would be denied necessary information.

The analgesics are found in more than 50,000 brand name products for which Americans spent $720 million in 1975, according to FDA figures.

The scientists, who have been studying the question since 1972, said aspirin relieves pain and inflammation of arthritis and is generally effective for other minor pain. But they said labels and advertising for such products should not tout them as arthritis formulas because individuals may reach wrong conclusions about their illnesses.

The group said scientific proof should be required for such claims as "Fast pain relief," "Special pain relieving formula," "So gentle it can be taken on an empty stomach" and "Acts five times faster than aspirin."

Asked if he thought such descriptions might prove unprovable, Bellville told UPI, "I don't know." It may be possible to design a test showing fast pain relief, he said, but "getting it into the blood faster doesn't mean you get analgesia (pain relief) faster."

The group also listed hundreds of other relief claims which should not be allowed, including jumpy nerves, gout, bursters lumbago pain following dental procedures, sinusitis, gargle for sore throat, body aches and the blues.

Film will show Superman, like everyone, has own problems

New York (UPI) — Lois Lane is convinced. Clark Kent is Superman. She'll throw herself from a window at the Daily Planet to prove it.

But what will the mild-mannered reporter do? Give away his identity? Tear off his glasses, his pinstripes and fly out to rescue her?

Or will the Man of Steel resist her charms and carry on his fight against evil?

Don't ask the film crew. Nobody's telling. "You don't want to know that," chides Coproducer Ilya Salkind. "It's a secret."

The first day of filming in New York Thursday was anything but a secret.

The street in front of the Daily News Building (transformed for the day into the "Daily Planet" building) overflowed with a film crew of 160, reporters, public relations assistants and a few hopeful stardlets.

One woman who regularly serves vegetable soup at the nearby Woolworth's, walked nonchalantly back and forth in front of the building — singing off key.

A vendor hawked the New York Daily Planet — an offbeat tabloid printed near Union Square. "Hey, Superman," he shouts to actor Christopher Reeve. "Meet ya in a phone booth. Heh, heh." Reeve grimaces. "You know I think 'Superman' is going to catch a lot of people by surprise," said Reeve, 24, who was known as a serious Broadway actor before he accepted the fantasy role of Clark Kent-Superman.

"Superman up 'til now has been stuck with the 'leaping from tall buildings' image. But the movie is a real story. The comic book was a good start, but you can't get into a cardboard figure. Our Superman is a real person. He comes from an alien planet and he has his problems. He falls in love — and he has a full relationship."

A full relationship? Superman in the bedroom? "Well, you'll see how it works out," he says. "It is rated PG, though."

The time is now. No early 40's newsroom and dress. That's obvious as Margot Kidder (Lois Lane) walks through a scene. Her stylishly long skirt is slit up to mid-thigh.

"She's all 'sweet-and-low' around Clark, but she's like she's on amphetamines the rest of the time," says Margot.

Salkind, the 29-year-old producer who made a name for himself with his "Muskeeters" films, says the film is funny but not campy. "You laugh with the characters, not at them."

Superman is just like the rest of us, he says. "He's got problems. He's an alien in this world and yet he's Clark Kent, the all-

American guy, who falls in love."

"Superman" has been filming since July 22 in a London studio, where the planet Krypton was recreated and where Marlon Brando played Superman's father (Jor-El).

Three more months of filming are still ahead — including some mugging scenes on New York City streets, a scene at Niagara Falls and more studio shooting in London before the $30 million film is released next summer.

But the lady in the lobby of the Daily News Building was not impressed. "Daily Planet, huh," she harumphed. "I didn't even like it as the Daily News."

Weather credited in crime decrease

Washington (AP) — The bitter cold and snows of early 1977 may have contributed to the nation's sharpest quarterly decrease in crime in nearly two decades, the FBI said Thursday.

The crime rate for the first three months of 1977 dropped 9 per cent below the level for the same period a year ago, the agency said in its quarterly Uniform Crime Report.

The statistics are based on the number of crimes reported to nearly 9,000 state and local law enforcement agencies. The report covers seven crime categories — murder, rape, aggravated assault, robbery, burglary, larceny and motor vehicle theft.

"The harsh winter could have been a major factor in the declining number of reported crimes," the FBI said. The sharpest drops occurred in January and early February when the winter weather was at its worst, the bureau noted.

In addition, sections of the country with the most severe weather experienced the greatest crime decreases. A 16 per cent decline was reported for north central states and a 9 per cent drop for Northeastern states.

"The mugger apparently wasn't leaving the house, and neither was his potential victim," an FBI spokesman observed. But he said it's only a theory that the harsh weather contributed to the decline. There is no evidence to prove the theory.

However, in the West, where many areas escaped the winter harshness, the crime rate dropped only 3 per cent. There was an 8 per cent decline in the South where some sections experienced unusual cold and snowy weather although not as severe as in the North.

The statistics for some major cities bore out the theory in some cases and seemed to contradict it in others.

In the moderate climate of Southern California, the number of reported crimes in San Diego rose from 15,690 in the first quarter of 1976 to 16,421 during the same period this year. But in Los Angeles, crimes decreased from about 58,000 to about 53,000.

In Texas, another warm weather state, there were modest decreases in Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas, San Antonio and Waco and slight increases in El Paso, Fort Worth and Lubbock.

Reported crimes in Houston rose from 23,668 to 27,660, a surge of about 16 per cent. Increases in murder, from 73 to 87, and burglary and larceny pushed Houston's over-all figures up.

Among cold-weather cities, Detroit reported crimes decreasing from 35,814 to 29,470, a 20 per cent plunge. There were substantial decreases in murder, robbery, assault, burglary and larceny.

The report showed an 11 per cent over-all decrease in Chicago and a 4 per cent drop in New York.

The FBI said the 9 per cent national decrease was the largest quarterly drop in the 19 years the quarterly reports have been prepared.

Increases were reported for two categories. Rape was up 5 per cent, and assault rose 1 per cent.

But murder was down 5 per cent, robbery 8 per cent, burglary 7 per cent, larceny 11 per cent and motor vehicle theft 4 per cent.

Market ekes out gain

New York (AP) — Anticipation of some favorable inflation news helped the stock market squeeze out a modest gain in an erratic session Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 370 industrials chalked up a 178 advance to 909.1 after touching its lowest level in a month the day before.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a 4-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, and the NYSE's composite index pushed ahead 17 to 54.84.

For most of the day the market failed to establish a trend, but prices swung upward toward the close.

Brokers said the late buying

Dow Ind. +1.78

might have been prompted by widespread expectations of some good news Friday morning when the government makes its monthly report on the wholesale price index.

For several days analysts have been forecasting that the index might show a decline for June thanks to recent declines in the prices of many commodities, notably farm products.

Wall Street also had a generally favorable response to the Federal Reserve's report at the NYSE close that the basic measure of the money supply rose only a modest amount in the latest reporting week.

The data were taken as evidence that the Fed would feel no strong pressure immediately to tighten credit.

Experts frequently warn that few conclusions can be drawn from week-to-week wriggles in the Fed figures, but the Thursday afternoon reports still are closely watched by a number of Wall Streeters looking for clues to future interest rate trends.

On the negative side, brokers said the market still was struggling with doubts about the prospects for continued strong economic growth later this year and into 1978.

Tim Nissen wins to meet doubles partner Jim Carson in singles finals of the Lincoln Junior Open

Chance meeting initiates friendship, doubles team

By Chuck Sinclair
Staff Sports Writer

A chance meeting during the Lincoln Tennis Foundation's junior development winter program changed what might have been strictly competition between Tim Nissen and Jim Carson into a lasting friendship.

From the friendship that developed, the pair of 14-year-olds formed a doubles team that appears on the road to its second straight tournament title without a loss. They easily reached the Friday finals of the 14 and under doubles in the Lincoln Junior Closed Tennis Tournament now underway at Woods Tennis Center.

But besides their try for that particular title, Nissen and Carson must face each other for the singles title before the day is over.

In the Get-in-Shape tournament earlier this summer, they won the doubles and also reached the singles finals.

Carson, a freshman at Lincoln Pius X, posted an 11-9 triumph over East sophomore Nissen in that confrontation.

"It's time for me to strike back now," Nissen said. "Although this is just the second time we've played each other in competition, in practice, he beats me a lot and I beat him. It all kind of evens out."

"We're supposedly doing well in tournaments together," Nissen added. "But we really haven't tried any big ones. We're looking forward to playing in the Lincoln Junior Open together."

Unfortunately for the doubles team, Nissen's 15th birthday falls before the allowable date under meet sanctioning rules, so for all the sanctioned meets they compete in, including the Lincoln Open, they must team in the 16 and under division.

"Jim has probably got a pretty good chance for a state ranking in 14 and under singles," Nissen said. "But it's going to be tough for us in doubles."

Despite the tough going in sanctioned doubles, the friendship thrives, even when they compete against each other in singles.

"There isn't really any competitive friction between us," Carson said. "Playing together in doubles helps us when we play singles against each other because we know each others' game so well."

Both competitors are enjoying the absence of Lincoln 14 and under player Craig Johnson who is off playing sanctioned meets for a national ranking.

"It's nice to get a break from him every once in awhile," Carson admitted. "He's really impressive."

"The break is nice," Nissen added. "But I'd still enjoy playing him. He'd wipe me out easy, but you get good experience from playing the best."

The Lincoln Junior Closed will be completed Friday with finals matches in all divisions at various times throughout the day at the Woods Tennis Center.

A Gypsy Says, Chief Bandito eye Gold Cup

By Mark Gordon
Staff Sports Writer

Omaha — A Gypsy Says and Chief Bandito must feel like twins — they both are local hopefuls trying to stop the "invaders."

That's the position the two locals are in for Saturday's $100,000-added Omaha Gold Cup Stakes here at Ak-Sar-Ben. The mile and 1/16th chase for 3-year-olds attracted a full field of 14 sophomores, including four "imports."

But the connections of both locals are hopeful.

"He's been training real good . . . the best ever," said A Gypsy Says' trainer Jim Hughes. "He worked a mile last week in 1:39.1-5. A real good move. I've just given him long gallops, blow outs in the morning."

"He's approaching the race the best ever. He's relaxed and acts sharp. I think he'll run a real big race," Hughes said.

The last race for Gypsy was, as Hughes said, "a real big one." He scored a 5 1/2-length verdict in the $25,000-added 4-H Handicap here on June 18 over the same distance as the Gold Cup.

Hughes noted that a year ago, a virus struck Gypsy. After a layoff, he ran fourth to Triple Crown runnerup Run Dusty Run in a stakes race at Arlington Park near Chicago.

"I was real pleased with his last race (4-H Handicap)," Hughes said. "That's the best he's ever run."

This season, Gypsy has won three races with one second in eight outings for earnings of $34,584 for owner Leopoldo Villareal of El Paso, Tex.

Chief, Bandito, meanwhile has been one of Ak-Sar-Ben's most consistent runners.

He's scored two wins, five seconds and one third in 12 outings for earnings of $19,164 for owner Red Dudley of Lincoln. It's the improvement from each race, however, that has pleased trainer Robin Keller.

"He's improved a lot. He's the best horse I've had and probably will ever have," Keller noted. "I don't have to do a lot with him. The horse is the whole show. I just make sure he's taken care of the best way I can."

"He's gotten here (in Gold Cup) through a process of elimination. If he ran a bad race or something went wrong, we wouldn't have gone with him," he added. "He's gotten through everything and made it this far."

"I'm going in with the idea we can win. I've felt all along we've got a chance," Keller said.

He stressed a fast-early pace which would tire the frontrunners would greatly aid the Chief. He's a rally horse who makes a big stretch run.

Last Friday, he used that closing kick to finish second, eight lengths behind the probably Gold Cup favorite, Jatski, in the Omaha Gold Cup Prep at a mile and 70 yards.

Keller said Chief Bandito was broken at the State Fairgrounds in Lincoln and received his early training at the Capital City track.

Dudley noted that Chief Bandito has beaten every local horse entered except A Gypsy Says and Jatski.

"We've never had anybody hook (challenge) a leader," Dudley said. "Robin and I both think he's earned his way. We wouldn't race him just to get in the race. If he didn't have a chance, we wouldn't have entered him."

The two probable favorites each drew an inside post position.

The Hawksworth Farms' Tiger Castle drew the first position while W. H. Murray's Jatski drew number two.

Tiger Castle finished second to Really I (another entrant) in the $25,000-added Olympia Stakes over 7 furlongs at Arlington

Park on June 18 and has earned $32,815 this season on three wins and three seconds with one third in eight cuttings.

Jatski has four wins and six seconds in 16 runs this season for earnings of $45,772. He was fourth in the $150,000 Ohl Derby at Thistledown on June 19.

Off his easy win in the Gold Cup Prep, he likely will rule a favorite.

Cruguet to ride at Aksarben

Omaha — Jean Cruguet, the regular rider for Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew, will ride Friday here at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Ak-Sar-Ben general manager and executive director Dick Becker said the first 10,000 paid admissions will receive a picture of Cruguet and Seattle Slew at the finish line of the Belmont Stakes.

Cruguet has ridden Seattle in his 10 races — the first nine were victories and then he finished fourth in the Swape Stakes Sunday at Hollywood Park near Los Angeles.

This year, he has won more than 50 races and his mounts have earned more than $1 million.

Cruguet becomes only the second rider of a Triple Crown winner to compete at Ak-Sar-Ben. Ron Turcotte, who rode Secretariat to the 1973 Triple Crown, rode and won on Stonewalk here in the 1975 Cornhusker Handicap.

He is scheduled to ride Mr. Watergate during the $30,000-added Pioneers' Stakes.

Commission hears 2 plans

By Mark Gordon
Staff Sports Writer

Omaha — Henry Brandt knew he'd be the center of discussion. That's why he already had two plans printed for Thursday afternoon's Nebraska State Racing Commission meeting here at Ak-Sar-Ben.

The meeting was termed a "pre-date setting" fete for the 1978 Nebraska thoroughbred race schedule. But it was really a "how to give Lincoln more dates without hurting anyone else," discussion.

"We have an obligation on this commission to a $5 million grandstand in the second largest city in Nebraska," stressed Commission chairman Harry Faraham of Elkhorn. "Lincoln has to have more dates to support it (the new grandstand)."

Brandt, general manager for the State Fairgrounds, prefaced his remarks with "we're not asking for the sky. We want a fair shake for everybody. We'd like 35 to 40 days if possible."

The two plans, Brandt stressed would not affect either Columbus or Atokad Park in South Sioux City.

The first plan for 1978 would have Fonner Park in Grand Island start Feb. 21 and close April 15. That's 40 days, the same as this year, except a start two weeks earlier.

Then Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha would begin April 18 and continue through July 8. That's 60 days, the same as this year except another two-week earlier start.

Lincoln would then start on July 7 and run through Aug. 26 — for a total of 35 days. That's six more dates than this year's 29-day season, without Monday racing.

The second plan would give Fonner 40 days from Feb. 21 through April 15. But the major change would have Lincoln race before Ak-Sar-Ben.

Lincoln would start April 18 through and run through June 10 for 40 days. Then Ak-Sar-Ben would have 60 days running from June 13 through Sept. 2.

Neither plan drew support from either Fonner general manager Al Swihart or Ak-Sar-Ben executive director and general manager Dick Becker.

"I don't see how anybody can expect us to start any earlier than we do," Swihart said. "How could we race Tuesday through Saturday at the beginning?"

"We're having trouble filling three days a week at the start let alone five days," Swihart said. "I object very strongly to either plan."

Becker, noting that Ak-Sar-Ben isn't equipped to handle cold weather, said he guessed the Omaha plant would lose 40 to 50 per cent of the horses on the Oaklawn-Ak-Sar-Ben circuit to Chicago. He said owners wouldn't want to wait after Oaklawn closes in early April until Ak-Sar-Ben would start in mid-June.

"We'd lose business to Chicago that we'd never get back," Becker said. "Either plan would be very harmful to Ak-Sar-Ben, which provides between 60 and 65 per cent (of the thoroughbred racing) revenue to the state."

Brandt also noted the difficulties in running the race meet during the 10-day Nebraska State Fair.

He listed four drawbacks to that proposal:

— Stabling facilities at the Fairgrounds can house 1,000 runners and runs about 2,800 horses through the State Fair.

— Lack of parking room. The reserved parking section during the race meet holds the midway show during the fair.

— A difficult selling job would be needed to convince the state that running a pari-mutuel horse meet with thousands of minors around.

— The State Fair can not sell beer or hard liquor during the fair. That would seriously hurt the concession business.

"My board, John (assistant general manager Skeld) and I have studied every possibility. There's absolutely no way we can race during the fair."

"The first Saturday of last year's fair we had to close the gates at 11 a.m. Right now, I can see no solution," Brandt said.

Farnham said the official date-setting meeting would be during the State Fairground's racing season in Lincoln.

Maltbie takes 1 stroke lead in British Open

Turnberry, Scotland (UPI) — Roger Maltbie found his way from San Jose to the leader's slot in the 106th British Open Thursday with a second-round 66 to go three under par at the halfway mark — one stroke ahead of the pack.

Bunched behind the 26-year-old Californian at 138 were three former titleholders, Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson and Lee Trevino, and the current U.S. Open champion, Hubie Green, which gave the race for the $17,000 first prize a distinct American flavor.

Maltbie, who celebrated his birthday a week ago, said he "missed a few putts but scrambled well when it was needed" to go out in 34 after a bogey at the par-three sixth hole. But he collected five birdies — including a two at the 208-yard 15th when he rolled in a putt from 45 feet.

Nicklaus, the 7-2 favorite in the $170,000 tournament, shot a regulation 70 along with Trevino and both players bogeyed the final hole when they were three-up.

Green's round of 66 included a hole-in-one, the sixth ace of his career. A six iron from the tee at the 167-yard fourth hole went wide of the line, but kicked to the left and ran 25 feet into the cup.

Green went on to be seven under par with five holes to play, but dropped three strokes to an otherwise sizzling round.

Mark Hayes, of Edmond, Okla., whistled around the 6,875-yard course in 63 to beat the old British Open record for any round by two strokes. Hayes and Britain's Peter Butler, who returned a 68, were tied for sixth place at 139.

Overnight leader John Schroeder faded in the heat and hit a 74 after his first round of 66 to drop into a group at 140 that included Ben Crenshaw, George Burns and Spain's Severiano Ballesteros.

Crenshaw carded a 69 — one of the 12 players Thursday to break par. The field of 156 was cut off at the 150 mark to leave 87 qualifiers for the final two rounds.

Defending champion Johnny Miller hit a "sinful" 74 to make his aggregate for 36 holes 143 — the same as Ray Floyd.

"I was pathetic around the greens," a dispirited Miller said. "It's a sin to shoot 74. I threw the tournament away."

Maltbie, presently 50th in the list of U.S. money winners, made few mistakes in his round and dropped only one hole — a bogey four at the short sixth.

The New York Mets and the Philadelphia Phillies are both zipping along — but they're going in opposite directions.

Mike Schmidt's 25th homer, a three-run shot in the first inning Thursday night, helped power the Phillies to a 6-4 victory over the Mets, extending Philadelphia's winning streak to eight games and the Mets' losing streak to eight.

Schmidt, who leads the major leagues in homers, hit his blast off New York starter and loser Nino Espinosa with Garry Maddox and Larry Bowa on base to give the Phillies a quick 3-0 lead.

New York went ahead in the fourth inning when Espinosa capped a four-run uprising with a two-run single, but Philadelphia quickly regained the lead in their all of the fourth.

Greg Luzinski hit a bases-loaded single which scored Garry Maddox with the tying run, and Larry Bowa continued home on the play when Bud Harrelson threw the ball away. Warren Brusar, 3-1, was the winner in relief.

Elsewhere, Chicago blanked St. Louis 2-0 and San Francisco downed San Diego 5-1.

Rick Reuschel scattered nine hits in becoming the National League's first 12-game winner. Reuschel, 12-2, walked three and struck out four in outdueling Larry Dierker. Larry Butner hit his sixth homer of the year for Chicago.

Rookie left-hander Bob Knepper pitched eight innings of five-hit ball to help the Giants snap an eight-game losing streak. Knepper, 2-3, walked one and struck out four before being removed for pinch-hitter Gary Thomasson — who doubled in a pair of insurance runs.

National League RBI leader Steve Garvey lashed a three-run double and Dusty Baker followed with a two-run homer in the first inning as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Houston Astros 7-4.

Garvey increased his RBI total to 79 when he doubled off Mark Lemongello with the bases filled while Baker hit his 16th homer of the year.

American League

The New York Yankees picked on their favorite pasties Thursday night and it was the same old story.

New York, leading the American League East by one game over Baltimore and Boston, defeated the Cleveland Indians 8-2 at Yankee Stadium — the Yankees 13th straight victory against Cleveland over two seasons.

Catfish Hunter pitched a fourth-hitter for his fourth straight win and Paul Blair, Lou Piniella and Graig Nettles each drove in a pair of runs.

Hunter, 5-3, walked two and struck out three. He gave up a home run to Ray Fosse in the third inning and then retired 14 consecutive batters until Buddy Bell singled in the seventh.

Elsewhere, Boston topped Toronto 5-2, Texas beat Oakland 8-3 and Minnesota downed California 8-6. Milwaukee at Kansas City was rained out.

Carlton Fisk knocked in three runs with a sacrifice fly and his 16th homer to extend the Red Sox' winning streak to three games. Rookie Bob Stanley pitched the first six innings for his fifth win. Jim Rice clubbed his 20th homer for Boston and Doug Rader hit a two-run shot for the Blue Jays.

Fobv Harrah cracked a three-run home run in the sixth to break a 3-3 tie and added a solo shot in the seventh to give the Rangers their second straight win. Roger Moret, after almost three months on the disabled list, won his first game of the season.

Butch Wynegar drove in three runs to lead the Twins past Frank Tanana. Wynegar's bases-loaded single in the fourth inning chased Tanana, 12-5, and Luis Gomez and Roy Smalley each had a pair of RBIs in support of winner Ron Schueler. Rod Carew pinch-hit and walked — keeping his batting average at .402.

U.S. squad tops Japan

Omaha (AP) — Freshman Derek Tatsuno of the University of Hawaii fashioned a four hitter Thursday night to lift the American Collegiate All-Stars to a 2-1 victory over Japan and a one-game lead in the sixth College Baseball series.

In winning for the first time in three games here the U.S.A. team moved within one victory of taking the series for a fifth straight year.

Tatsuno struck out 12 and allowed a pair of singles and two doubles. Japan's only run came on an error.

The series concludes Saturday and Sunday nights with single games in Los Angeles.

Target of Finley's ire still wants A's

Washington (UPI) — Former Texas Congressman Alan W. Steelman — called "a jerk" and "a nickel and dime politician" by Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley — said Thursday that Finley's ire would not seriously hamper his efforts to buy the A's and move them to Washington.
"I just want to let things rest a few days," said Steelman, who heads a group that wants the club. "I don't think Finley's remarks represent a fatal blow. But this is still a terribly distressing thing to have happen."

Finley told The Washington Star that if Steelman is interested, he should put up sufficient cash or shut up. Figures of $10 to $11 million have been bandied about.
"I'm sick and tired of the stories that keep coming out of Washington," the Star quoted Finley as saying. "Sick and tired of promoters back there saying they are going to buy my ball team."
"I guarantee you that I'm not going to fool around with this latest jerk. The guy's nothing but a nickel and dime politician."

Elsewhere in the story, Finley was quoted as calling Steelman "a Texan — big hat and no cattle."
The insults didn't ruffle Steelman.
"I'll just call Finley on the phone when the time comes again," he said. "There are other parts of this deal that can be worked on while relations with him sit in abeyance for a while."
"You can't conduct negotiations of this type through the media. Publicity has hurt other people that have tried to bring teams to Washington." Steelman, a two-term congressman now in private business in Reston, Va., was first mentioned as a potential owner Tuesday when Brad Corbett announced he wanted to sell his interest in the Texas Rangers and identified Steelman as a possible buyer.

Steelman said he was not interested in the Rangers — mostly because Corbett would not allow them to be moved — but that he had talked to Finley about the A's.
If Steelman's dream is played out, the A's would be moved to Washington as a National League club, thus circumventing the Baltimore Orioles' power to keep another American League team out of the nation's capital. The shift would leave 13 teams in each league, making interleague play likely.

"If Washington gets a team, baseball could clear its decks of lingering problems," said Steelman. "I think interleague play could be worked out to the advantage of everyone."

New NFL agreement called restrictive

Minneapolis (AP) — San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts testified Thursday in federal court that the new collective bargaining agreement between the National Football League Players Association and the NFL may force him into retirement.
Fouts said he would like to leave San Diego so he could have an opportunity to play with a Super Bowl team, and that the Chargers weren't of that caliber. The new agreement, testified Fouts, makes it unlikely another team would be able to acquire his services.

Spring grid injuries high

San Diego (UPI) — Spring football causes more injuries than any other sport in college, with a rate of 7.1 injuries for each thousand exposures, according to the National Athletic Injury-Illness Reporting System (NAIRS).
Dr. Sayers Miller, assistant professor of health education at Pennsylvania State University, and coordinator for the reporting system, made the report at a convention of the American Orthopedic Society for Sports Medicine.
Miller said the comparative injury rates per thousand exposures for other college sports are wrestling, 4.6; fall football, 3.3; lacrosse, 2.1; soccer, 2.0; ice hockey, 2.2; gymnastics, 1.0; basketball, 1.9; baseball, 1.6; track and field, 1.6.
At the high school level football results in 2.4 injuries per thousand; wrestling, 1.4; ice hockey, 1.2 and basketball, 1.0.
Miller said the NAIRS study shows knee injuries are most common, followed by hip and leg, foot and ankle, forearm and hand, shoulder and arms, torso, head and neck, and face and scalp.

Howard County hit by heavy rain

Heavy rains of from four to five inches in Howard County Thursday night caused some flash flooding north of Elba along Highway 11.

The Howard County sheriff's office at St. Paul said water was running over the highway north of Elba for a time after the downpours, pushing some tree limbs over the roadway.

Marble-size hail fell west of St. Paul and at Danneberg.

Earlier a severe thunderstorm hit the McCook area where 1.50 inches of rain fell within a 20-minute period, blocking U.S. 6 and 34 in McCook for awhile due to water eight to 10 inches deep, resulting in stalled cars. Marble-size hail and winds estimated up to 60 miles per hour accompanied the storm at McCook.

Golfball-size hail was reported at Broken Bow, along with very heavy rains and high winds.

Two miles west of Merna, located just northwest of Broken Bow, walnut-size hail in a band two to three miles wide wiped out cornfields, the National Weather Service reported.

Hail of golfball size was also reported just east of Comstock.

At North Loup very heavy rains fell with 2.60 inches recorded within a 45-minute period.

Strong winds, gusting up to 48 miles per hour, moved into the Lincoln area shortly after 9 p.m. Thursday as the storm moved into the city from the northwest. A line of thunderstorms moved southeastward through Seward County before reaching into Lancaster County and the Lincoln vicinity.

Power was out in the University Place area for about an hour and a half, a Lincoln Electric System spokesman said. A tree limb fell across a 12,500-volt feeder line near 51st and Huntington, knocking out power from 44th to 56th and Walker to Fremont Streets. Power was restored at 11:12 p.m.

A crew of about 50 was busy Thursday night restoring about 75 scattered outages throughout the city, the spokesman said. Most of the outages were limited to single residences, he said, and were expected to be cleared by 1 a.m. Friday.

The severe weather was attributed to a cold front extending from northeast to south central Nebraska, expected to move out of the state by early Friday.

Behind the front, was slightly cooler air, as reflected by Valentine's high for Thursday of 79 degrees. The McCook reported 94 degrees for the state's high prior to passage of the frontal there.

Lincoln's high for the day was 91 degrees, a welcome relief after temperatures of 100 or more the past four days. The overnight low in Lincoln was 69 degrees.

Labor strife pervades Pamplona festival

Pamplona, Spain (AP) — As they have for four centuries, fighting bulls stampeded through the streets of Pamplona Thursday, chasing daring men before them, but the excitement of this year's running of the bulls was dampened by labor strife and post-Franco politics.

The festival opened in an unusually sober mood, hotel and bar workers having ended a strike only at the last minute and agreeing to serve thirsty customers.

The strike was called to protest the firing of 70 fellow workers. A spokesman for the strikers said it might be resumed after the week-long festival, a prime time for tips.

The traditional round of drinking, dancing and bull-dodging popularized by American writer Ernest Hemingway was marred Wednesday by street fights between political activists and others who cried "Festival — Yes, Politics — No."

At one point Basque separatists tore down the Spanish flag at city hall, forcing the municipal band to halt its opening concert. Pamplona is in Spain's autonomy-minded northern Basque region.

Local officials of the Spanish Socialist Workers' party, which supports Basque autonomy, appealed for calm and asked that the celebrations not become "politicized."

In an effort to head off trouble, the city government this year had banned demonstrations at the festival, despite Spain's new movement toward democracy.

The festival had been largely non-political until last year, after the death of the long-time right-wing dictator Gen. Francisco Franco.

New York ban continues at Kennedy

New York (UPI) — The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey voted unanimously Thursday to continue its 14-month ban against Concorde SST operations at Kennedy Airport pending further noise studies.

The board of the bi-state agency, which runs the airport, made the decision to delay a decision in a voice vote at a 10-minute public session.

Earlier in the day, the commissioners held a three-hour closed-door conference with environmental consultants.

The 12 board members conferred with Aubrey McKennel of McKennel Associates of London and with Carl Kryter of Stamford Research Institute. Both firms were retained by the Port Authority.

According to PA spokesman John Tillman, the consultants provided information on the "total environmental impact" of the SST at Heathrow Airport in London, De Gaulle Airport in Paris and Dulles Airport outside Washington, D.C.

He said noise, vibration factors, perception of noise by those on the ground and structural damage caused by the SST were discussed.

Three weeks ago, a federal appeals court ordered the PA to come to a swift decision on the Concorde.

At the same time it ordered U.S. District Court Judge Milton Pollack to see whether the temporary ban did not justify Carter administration claims that the authority was dragging its feet.

The federal government has approved experimental flights by the British-French supersonic plane to and from Kennedy Airport, but the actual flights have been blocked by the authority.

Agreement is reached for Emmys

Hollywood (UPI) — The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences and its Breakaway Hollywood chapter announced an agreement Thursday to operate as separate entities and split up responsibility for the Emmy Awards.

The settlement also resolves all pending lawsuits in the case, including the original suit filed by the group's Hollywood chapter to dissolve the national organization.

The agreement gives the new Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, with headquarters in Hollywood and a branch in Los Angeles, the exclusive right to conduct the annual Emmy Awards for nighttime entertainment shows and local awards for Hollywood.

The old National Academy, which will move its headquarters to New York, will retain exclusive rights for the daytime, sports and broadcast journalism awards and for local awards for all other areas.

Members of both organizations will be eligible to vote in all Emmy contests.

The new academy also will retain all assets of the old Hollywood chapter and will administer the academy foundation library and archives at UCLA, while the old academy will continue to publish TV Quarterly and to operate the group's international council.

Officials said the settlement was reached during three weeks of negotiations and was ratified in the past several days by officials and members of the two organizations.

The 1977 nighttime entertainment Emmys will be presented Sept. 11 in a show to be televised on NBC.
